

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

their occurrence ; but it will be manifestly unfair to make them the test of merit, or thence to pronounce a judgment on the accuracy of the whole. I may add that the greatest care has been taken to render the references and quotations accurate, and whenever it was practicable, they have been collated in type with the originals. The great importance of accurate references will be fully appreciated by the student who has experienced the inconvenience of the many inaccurate ones in the works of Nares, Gifford, and others.

The numerous quotations I have given from early manuscripts will generally be found to be literal copies from the originals, without any attempt at remedying the grammatical errors of the scribes, so frequent in manuscripts of the fifteenth century. The terminal contractions were then, in fact, rapidly vanishing as part of the grammatical construction of our language, and the representative of the vowel terminations of the Anglo-Saxon was lost before the end of that century. It is only within the last few years that this subject has been considered by our editors, and it is much to be regretted that the texts of Ritson, Weber, and others are therefore not always to be depended upon. For this reason I have had recourse in some cases to the original manuscripts in preference to using the printed texts, but, generally, the quotations from manuscripts have been taken from pieces not yet published. Some few have been printed during the time this work has been in the press, a period of more than two years.

In ascertaining the meaning of those early English words, which have been either improperly explained or have escaped the notice of our glossarists, I have chiefly had recourse to those grand sources of the language, Anglo-Saxon and Anglo-Norman. It appeared to me to be sufficient in such cases to indicate the immediate source of the word without referring to the original root, discarding in fact etymological research, except when it was necessary to develop the right explanation. Etymological disquisitions on provincial words have also been considered unnecessary ; but in some few instances, where there existed no reasonable doubt, the root has been mentioned.

In explaining terms and phrases of the Elizabethan era, I have had the advantage not enjoyed in preparing that part of the work which relates to the earlier period, of referring to the labours of a predecessor in the same task. The Glossary of Archdeacon Nares has here necessarily in some respects been my guide, generally a faithful one as far as his explanations are concerned, but still very imperfect as a general glossary to the writers of that age. I have attempted to supply his deficiencies by more than trebling his collection of words and phrases, but my plan did not permit me to imitate his prolixity, and I have therefore frequently stated results without explaining the reasoning or giving the reading which led to them. Nares' Glossary is however, notwithstanding its imperfections, a work of great merit, and distinguished by the clearness and discrimination with which the collections of the Shakespearian commentators are arranged and discussed. To find him occasionally in error merely illustrates the impossibility of perfection in philological studies.

Having had in view the wants of readers unskilled in early English rather than the literary entertainment of professed students, I have admitted numerous forms the etymologist will properly regard corrupt, and which might easily have been reduced to their original sources. I may have carried the system too far, but to have excluded corruptions would certainly have rendered the work less generally useful; and it is not to be presumed that every one who consults a manual of this kind will despise the assistance thus afforded. There are, too, many corruptions the sources of which are not readily perceivable even by the most experienced.

So many archaisms are undoubtedly still preserved by our rural population, that it was thought the incorporation of a glossary of provincialisms would render the work a more useful guide than one restricted to known archaisms. When Ray in 1674 published the first collection of English localisms, he gives three reasons for having undertaken the task: "First, because I knew not of anything that hath been already done in this kind; second, because I conceive they may be of some use to them who shall have occasion to travel the Northern counties, in helping them to understand the common language there; third, because they may also afford some diversion to the curious, and give them occasion of making many considerable remarks." It is remarkable that Ray seems to have been unacquainted with the real value of provincial words, and most of his successors appear to have collected without the only sufficient reason for preserving them, the important assistance they continually afford in glossing the works of our early writers.

Observations on our provincial dialects as they now exist will be found in the following pages, but under the firm conviction that the history of provincialisms is of far inferior importance to the illustration they afford of our early language, I have not entered at length into a discussion of the former subject. I have spared no pains to collect provincial words from all parts of the country, and have been assisted by numerous correspondents, whose communications are carefully acknowledged under the several counties to which they refer. These communications have enabled me to add a vast quantity of words which had escaped the notice of all the compilers of provincial glossaries, but their arrangement added immeasurably to the labour. No one who has not tried the experiment can rightly estimate the trouble of arranging long lists of words, and separating mere dialectical forms.

The contributors of provincial words are elsewhere thanked, but it would hardly be right to omit the opportunity of enumerating the more extensive conmunications. I may, then, mention my obligations to Captain Henry Smith, for his copious glossary of Isle of Wight provincialisms ; to the Rev. James Adcock, to whom I am principally indebted for Lincolnshire words ; to Goddard Johnson, Esq. for his valuable Norfolk glossary ; to Henry Norris, Esq. for his important Somersetshire collection ; to David E. Davy, Esq. for his MS. additions to Forby ; to Major Moor, for his collections for a new edition of his Suffolk Words and Phrases ; and to the Rev. J. Staunton, for the use of the late Mr. Sharp's manuscript glossary of Warwickshire words. Most of the other communications have been of essential service, and I cannot call to mind one, however brief, which has not furnished me with useful information. My anonymous correspondents will be contented with a general acknowledgment ; but I have not ventured to adopt any part of their communications unsupported by other authority. My thanks are also returned to Mr. Toone, for MS. additions to his Glossary, chiefly consisting of notes on Massinger ; to Sir Henry Dryden, Bart., for a few notes on hunting terms in the earlier letters ; and to Mr. Chaffers, jun. for a brief glossary compiled a few years since from Chaucer, Lydgate, &c. But my chief obligations are due to Thomas Wright, Esq. M.A., whose suggestions on nearly every sheet of this work, as it was passing through the press, have been of the greatest advantage, and whose profound knowledge of Anglo-Saxon and Anglo-Norman has frequently been of essential service when the ordinary guides had been ineffectually consulted.

THE ENGLISH PROVINCIAL DIALECTS.

ROBERT of Gloucester, after describing the Norman Conquest, thus alludes to the change of language introduced by that event :

And the Normans ne couthe speke tho bote her owe speche,
And speke French as dude atom, and here chyliden dude also teche.
So that hey men of this lond, that of her blod come,
Holdeth alle thulke speche that hli of hem nome.
Vor bote a man couthe French, me toth of hym wel lute,
Ac losse men holdeth to Englyss, and to her kunde speche zute.
Ich wene ther ne be man in world coutreyes none,
That ne holdeth to her kunde speche, bote Engeland one.
Ac wel me wot vor to conne bothe wel yt ys,
Vor the more that a man con, the more worth he ys.

This extract describes very correctly the general history of the languages current in England for the first two centuries after the battle of Hastings. Anglo-Norman was almost exclusively the language of the court, of the Norman gentry, and of literature. "The works in English which were written before the Wars of the Barons belong," says Mr. Wright, "to the last expiring remains of an older and totally different Anglo-Saxon style, or to the first attempts of a new English one formed upon a Norman model. Of the two grand monuments of the poetry of this period, Layamon belongs to the former of these classes, and the singular poem entitled the Ormulum to the latter. After the middle of the thirteenth century, the attempts at poetical composition in English became more frequent and more successful, and previous to the age of Chaucer we have several poems of a very remarkable character, and some good imitations of the harmony and spirit of the French versification of the time." After the Barons' Wars, the Anglo-Norman was gradually intermingled with the Anglo-Saxon, and no long time elapsed before the mongrel language, English, was in general use, formed, however, from the latter. A writer of the following century thus alleges his reason for writing in English :

In Englis tonge y schal gow telle, ȝyf ye so long with me wyl dwelle;
Ne Latyn wil y speke ne waste,
Bot English that men uses maste,
For that ys ȝoure kynde langage,
That ye hafe here most of usage;
That can ech man untherstonde
That is born in Englonde :
For that langage ys most schewed,
Als wel mowe lereþ as lewed.
Latyn also y trowe can nane,
Bot tho that hath hit of schole tane;
Som can Frensch and no Latyne,
That useth has court and duellt therinne,
And som can of Latyn aparty,
That can Frensch ful febylly;
And som untherstondith Englisch,
That nother can Latyn ne Frensch.
Bot lorde, and lewde, old and yong,
Alle untherstondith Englisch tonge.
Therefore y holde hit most eiker thanne
To schewe the langage that ech man can;
And for lewethe men namely,
That can no more of clergy,
Tho ken tham whare most nede,
For clerkes can both so and rede
In divers bokes of Holy Writ,
How they schul lyve, yf thay toke hit:
Therefore y wyll me holly halde
To that langage that Englisch ys caide. MS. Bodl. 48, f. 4h.

ENGLISH PROVINCIAL DIALECTS.

The author of the Cursor Mundi thought each nation should be contented with one language, and that the English should discard the Anglo-Norman :

This ilk bok it es translate Into Ingliš tong to rede,
For the love of Ingliš lede,
Ingliš lede of Ingland,
For the commun at understand.
Frankis rimes here I redd
Comunlik in ilk sted.
Maist es it wrought for Frankis man,
Quat is fur him na Frankis can ?
Of Ingland the nacion
Es Inglišman thar in commun ;
Thespeche that man wit maist may spede,
Maist thar wit to speke war nede.
Selden was for ani chance
Praised Ingliš tong in France !
Give us Ilkan thare language,
Me think we do tham non outrage.

MS. Cott. Verpos. A. iii. f. 2.

In the curious tale of King Edward and the Shepherd, the latter is described as being perfectly astonished with the French and Latin of the court :

The lordis anon to chawmbur went,
The kyng aftur the scheperde sent,
He was brogt forth fulle sone ;
He clawed his hed, his hanc he rent,
He wende wel to have be schent,
He no wist what was to done.
When he French and Latyn herde,
He hade mervelle how it ferde,
And drow hym ever alone :
Jhesu, he seid, for thi gret grace,
Bryng me fayre out of this place !
Lady, now here my bone !

MS. Cantab. Ff. v. 48, f. 55.

In the fifteenth century, English may be said to have been the general language of this country.* At this period, too, what is now called old English, rapidly lost its grammatical forms, and the English of the time of Henry VIII., orthography excepted, differs very little from that of the present day. A few archaisms now obsolete, and old phrases, constitute the essential differences.

Our present subject is the provincial dialects, to which these very brief remarks on the general history of the English language are merely preliminary,—a subject of great difficulty, and one which requires far more reading than has yet been attempted to develop satisfactorily, especially in its early period. Believing that the principal use of the study of the English dialects consists in the explanation of archaisms, I have not attempted that research which would be necessary to understand their history, albeit this latter is by no means an unimportant inquiry. The Anglo-Saxon dialects were not numerous, as far as can be judged from the MSS. in that language which have been preserved, and it seems probable that most of our English dialects might be traced historically and etymologically to the original tribes of the Saxons, Angles, and Jutes, not forgetting the Danes, whose language, according to Wallingford, so long influenced the dialect of Yorkshire. In order to accomplish this we require many more early documents which bear upon the subject than have yet been discovered, and the uncertainty which occurs in most cases of fixing the exact locality in which they were written adds to our difficulties. When we come to a later period, the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, there being no standard literary form of our native language, every MS. sufficiently exhibits its dialect, and it is to be hoped that all English works of this period may one day be classed according to their dialects. In such an undertaking, great assistance will be derived from a knowledge of our local dialects as they now exist. Hence the value of specimens of modern provincial language, for in many instances, as in Robert of Gloucester's Chronicle, compared with the present dialect of Gloucestershire, the organic forms of the dialect have remained unchanged for centuries. The Avenbyhte of Inwyt is, perhaps, the most remarkable specimen of early English MSS. written in a broad dialect, and it proves very satisfactorily that in the fourteenth century the principal features of what is termed the Western dialect were those also of the Kentish dialect. There can be, in fact, little doubt that the former was long current throughout the Southern counties, and even extended in some degree as far as Essex.* If we judge from the specimens of early English of which the localities of composition are known, we might perhaps divide the dialects of the fourteenth century into three grand classes, the Northern, the Midland, and the Southern, the last being that now retained in the Western counties. But, with the few materials yet published, I set little reliance on any classification of the kind. If we may decide from Mr. Wright's Specimens of Lyric Poetry, which were written in Herefordshire, or from Audelay's Poems, written in Shropshire in the fifteenth century, those counties would belong to the Midland division, rather than to the West or South.

The few writers who have entered on the subject of the early English provincial dialects, have advocated their theories without a due consideration of the probability, in many cases the certainty, of an essential distinction between the language of literature and that of the natives of a county. Hence arises a fallacy which has led to curious anomalies. We are not to suppose, merely because we find an early MS. written in any county in standard English, that that MS. is a correct criterion of the dialect of the county. There are several MSS. written in Kent of about the same date as the Ayenbyte of Inwyrt, which have none of the dialectical marks of that curious work. Most of the quotations here given from early MSS. must be taken with a similar limitation as to their dialect. Hence the difficulty, from want of authentic specimens, of forming a classification, which has led to an alphabetical arrangement of the counties in the following brief notices:—

BEDFORDSHIRE.

The dialect of this county has been fully investigated in Batchelor's Orthoepical Analysis of the English Language, 8vo. 1809. Etc takes the place of ow, ea of a, ow of the long o, oi of i, &c. When r precedes s and e final, or s and other consonants, it is frequently not pronounced. Ow final is often changed into er; ge final, into dge; and g final is sometimes omitted.

BERKSHIRE.

The Berkshire dialect partly belongs to the Western, and partly to the Midland, more strongly marked with the features of the former in the South-West of the county. The a is changed into o, the diphthongs are pronounced broadly, and the vowels are lengthened. Way is pronounced woye; thik and thak for this and that; he for him, and she for her.

BUCKINGHAMSHIRE.

The language of the peasantry is not very broad, although many dialectical words are in general use. A list of the latter was kindly forwarded to me by Dr. Hussey.

CAMBRIDGESHIRE.

There is little to distinguish the Cambridgeshire dialect from that of the adjoining counties. It is nearly allied to that of Norfolk and Suffolk. The perfect tense is formed strongly, as hit, hot, cid, sot, spare, spore, e. g. "if I am spore," i. e. spared, &c. I have to return my thanks to the Rev. J. J. Smith and the Rev. Charles Warren for brief lists of provincialisms current in this county.

CHESHIRE.

The Cheshire dialect changes i into u, ai into u or oo, i into oi or ee, o into u, a into o, o into a, u into i, ea into yo, and oa into wo. Mr. Wilbraham has published a very useful and correct glossary of Cheshire words. Second ed. 12mo. 1836.

Extract from a Speech of Judas Iscariot in the Play of Christ's Entry into Jerusalem.

By deare God In magistie!
I am so wroth as I maye be,
And some waye I will wrecken me,
As sone as ever I maye.
My mayster Jesu, as men maye see,
Was rubbed heade, foute, and knye,
With oymtment of more daintie
Then I see manye a dale.

And put it up in tresuerye,

For he hopes I wilbe trewe,
His purse allwile I bare.
Hym hade bene better, in good faye,
Hade spared oymtments that daie,

* This is stated on sufficiently ample authority, but Verstegan appears to limit it in his time to the Western counties.—"We see that in some severall parts of England itselfe, both the names of things, and pronuntiations of words, are somewhat different, and that among the country people that never borrow any words out of the Latin or French, and of this different pronuntiation one example in steed of many shal suffice, as this: for pronouncing according as one would say at London, I would eat more cheese if I had it, the Northern man saith, dy end out more cheese gin ay hadet, and the Western man saith, Chud eat more cheese an chad it. Lu heere three different pronuntiations in our owne country in one thing, and hereof many the like examples might be alleged."—Verstegan's Revestition, 1634, p. 195.

For wrooken I wilbesome wale
Of waste that was done thei;
Three hundred penny worthes it was
That he let spill in that place;
Therefore God geve me harde grace,
But hymselfe shalbe soulede

For the tenth peny of it:
And this my maister shalbe quite

CORNWALL.

It is almost unnecessary to observe, that the ancient Cornish language has long been obsolete. It appears to have been gradually disused from the time of Henry VIII., but it was spoken in some parts of the country till the eighteenth century. Modern Cornish is now an English dialect, and a specimen of it is here given. Polwhele has recorded a valuable list of Cornish provincialisms, and a new glossary has recently been published, in 'Specimens of Cornish Provincial Dialect,' 8vo. 1846. In addition to these, I have to acknowledge several words, hitherto unnoticed, communicated by Miss Hicks, and R. T. Smith, Esq.

Harrison, Description of Britaine, p. 14, thus mentions the Cornish language: "The Cornish and Devonshire men, whose countrie the Britons call Cerniw, have a speech in like sort of their owne, and such as hath in deed more affinitye with the Armorican tongue than I can well discusse of. Yet in mine opinion, they are both but a corrupted kind of British, albeit so far degenerating in these daies from the old, that if either of them doo meete with a Welshman, they are not able at the first to understand one another, except here and there in some od words, without the helpe of interpreters."

In Cornwall, Pembr. and Devon they for to milk say milky, for to squirt, to squiny, this, thicky, &c., and after most verbs ending with consonants they clap a y, but more commonly the lower part of Pembrokeshire.

Lhuyd's MS. Additions to Ray, Ashm. Mus.

(1) The Cornwall Schoolboy.

An ould man found, one day, a yung gentleman's portmantle, as he were a going to es dennar; he took'd et en and gived et to es wife, and said, "Mally, here's a roul of lither, look, see, I suppose some poor ould shoemaker or other have los'en, tak'en and put'en a top of the teaster of tha bed, he'll be glad to hab'en agen sun day. I dear say." The ould man, Jan, that was es neame, went to es work as before. Mally then open'd the portmantle, and found en et three hundred pounds. Soon after thes, the ould man not being very well, Mally said, "Jan, I've saved away a little money, by the bye, and as thee can't read or write, thee shu't go to scool" (he were then nigh threescore and ten). He went but a very short tyme, and comed hoam one day, and said, "Mally, I wain't go to scool no more, 'cause the childer do be laffen at me; they can tell thei letters, and I can't tell my A, B, C, and I wud rayther go to work agen." "Do as thee woul," ses Mally. Jan had not ben out many days, afore the yung gentleman came by that lost the portmantle, and said, "Well, my ould man, did'ee see or hear tell of sich a thing as a portmantle?" "Portmantle, sar, was't that un, sumthing like thickey? (pointing to one behind es saddle.) I found one the t'other day zackly like that." "Where es et?" "Come along, I can't den en and gov'en to my wife Mally; thee sha't av'en. Mally, where es that roul of lither that I giv'd tha the t'other day?" "What roul of lither?" said Mally. "The roul of lither I bro't en and tould tha to put'en a top of the teaster of the bed, afore I go'd to scool." "Drat tha emperance," said the gentleman, "thee art betwattled, that was before I were born."

(2) A Western Eclogue.

Pengrouse, a lad in many a science blest,
Outshone his toning brothers of the west:
Of amugling, hurling, wrestling much he knew,
And much of tin, and much of pilchards too.
Fam'd at each village, town, and country-house,
Menacken, Helstone, Polkinhorne, and Grouse;
Trespissen, Buddock, Cony-yerle, Trevery, Polbastard, Hallabazack, Eglesderry,
Pencob, and Restjag, Treviskey, Breague,
Irewinnick, Buskenwyn, Busveal, Roscreague:
But what avail'd his fame and various art,
Since he, by love, was smitten to the heart?
The shaft a beam of Bet Polglaze's eyes;
And now he dumpin loaths, and pilchard pier.
Young was the lass, a servant at St. Tizay,
Born at Polpisa, and bred at Movagizey.
Calm o'er the mountain blush'd the rising day,
And clug'd the summit with a purple ray.
When sleepless from his hutch the lover stole,
And met, by chance, the mistress of his soul.
And "Whither go'at?" he scratched his skull and cry'd;

"Arrear, God bless us," well the nymph reply'd,
"To Yealston sure, to buy a pound o' backy.
That us and measter wonderfully lacky;
God bless us ale, this fortnight, 'pon my word.
We nothing smooks but oak leaves and cue-terd."

Pengrouse.

Arrear then, Bessy, ly aloane the backy,
Sty here a tiny bit and let us talky.
Bessy, I loves thee, wot a ha me, say,
Wot ha Pengrouse, why wot a, Bessy, ha!

Bet Polglaze.

Ah, hunkin, hunkin, mind at Moushole fair
What did you at the Choughs, the alehouse there?
When you stows eighteen pence in cakes and beer,
To treat that dirty trollup, Mall Rosevear:
You stuffs it in her gills, and makes such pucker,
Arrear the people tho't you wld have choack her.

Pengrouse.

Curse Mall Rosevear, I says, a great jack whore,
I ne'er sees such a dirty drab before:
I stuffs her gills with cakes and beer, the hunk,
She stuffs herself, she meslin and got drunk,
Best drink sure for her jaws wan't good enow,
So leckers makes her drunk as David's sow;
Her feace is like a bull's, and 'tis a fool,
Her legs are like the legs o' cobler's stool;
Her eyes be grean's a lick, as yaffers big,
Noase flat's my hond, and neck so black's a pig.

Bet Polglaze.

Ay, but I've more to say; this isn't ale,
You deanc'd wy Mall Rosevear 't a sartin bale:
She toald me so, and lefts me wy a sneare—
Ay! you, Pengrouse, did deance wy Mall Rosevear.

• Best drink implies strong beer. • Brandy.
; Green as a leek.

Pengrouse.

Now, Bessy, hire me, Bessy, vath and soals.
Hire me, I says, and thou shalt hire the whole;
One night, a Wensday night, I vows to Goade,
Aloane, a hoosback, to Tresouze I roade;
Sure Bessy vath, dist hire me, 'tis no lies,
A d—mnder bale was never seed wy eyes.
I hires sum missick at an oald bearne doore,
And hires a wondrous rousing on the floore;
So in I pops my head; says I, arreare!
Why, what a devil's neame is doing heare?
Why deancing, cries the crowder by the wale,
Why deancing, deancing, measter—'tis a bale.
Deancing, says I, by Gam I hires sum preancers,
But tell us where the devil be the deancers;
For fy the dust and strawe so feed about,
I could not, Bessy, spy the hoppers out.
At laste I spies Rosevear, I wish her dead,
Who meakes me dance all nite, the stinking jade.
Says I, I have no thoose to kick a foote:
Why kick, says Mall Rosevear, then kick thy boote.
And, Bet, dist hire me, for to leert us ale,
A furthing candle wink'd again the wale.

Bet Polglaze.

Ah, hunkin, hunkin, I am huge afraid
That you is laughing at a simple maid.

Pengrouse.

Deare, dearest Bet, let's hug thee to my hearte,
And may us never never never pearte!
No, if I lies than, Bessy, than I wishes
The Shackleheads may never close the fishes;
That picky dogs may eat the sceane when fule,
Eat'n to rags, and let go ale the schule.

Bet Polglaze.

Then here's my hand, and wy it teake my hearte.

Pengrouse.

Goade bless us too, and here is mines, ods hearte!
One buss, and then to Pitcharding I'll packy.

Bet Polglaze.

And I to Yealstone for my master's backy.

(3) A Cornish Song.

Come, all ye jolly Tinner boys, and listen to me;
I'll tell ee of a storie shall make ye for to see,
Concerning Boney Peartie, the schames which he had maade
To stop our tin and copper mines, and all our pilchard knaads.
He summonsed forty thousand men, to Polland they did goe,
All for to rob and plunder there you very well do knawa;
But ten-thou- and were killed, and laads dead in blood and goare,
And thirty thousand ranned away, and I cante tell where, I'm sure.
And should that Boney Peartie have forty thousand still
To maake into an army to work his wicked will,
And try for to invade us, if he doent quickly fly—Why, forty thousand Cornish boys shall knawa the reason why.
Hures for tin and copper, boys, and fisheries likewise!
Hures for Cornish maadens—oh, bless their pretty eyes!
Hures for our ould gentrie, and may they never faale!
Hures, hures for Cornwall! hures, boys, "one and

CUMBERLAND.

The dialects of Cumberland, Westmoreland, Northumberland, and Durham may be considered to be identical in all essential peculiarities, the chief differences arising from the mode of pronunciation. According to Boucher, the dialect of Cumberland is much less uniform than that of Westmoreland. In Cumberland, oo is in frequent use instead of the long o, as will be noticed in the following example. A glossary of Cumberland words was kindly forwarded to me by Mr. Thomas Sanderson.

(1) Love in Cumberland.

Tune,—"Cuddle me, Cuddy."

Wa, Jwohn, what'n mannishment's 'tis
'At tou's gawn to dee for a hizzy!
Aw hard o' this torrible fias,
An' aw's cum't to advise tha',—'at is ee.
Mun, thou'll nobbet lwose teegud neame
Wi' gowlin an' whingin sea mickle;
Cockswunturs! min boyde about heame,
An' let her e'en ga to auld Nickle.
Thy plew-geer's aw liggin how-strow,
An' somebody's stown thee thy couter;
Oh (aiks!) thou's duin little 'at dow
To fash theesel iver about her.
Your Seymey has broken car stang,
An' mendit it wid a clog-coaker;
Pump-tree's geane aw wheyt wrang,
An' they've sent for auld Tom Stawker.
Young filly's dung oure the lang stee,
An' leam'd peer Andrew the thecker;
Thee mudder wad suffer't for tee,
An haw hadn't happ'n't to cleek her.
Thou's spoilt for aw manner o' wark:
Thou nobbet sits peghan an' pleenan.
Odswucke, man! doff that dirty sark,
An' pretha gi'e way git a clean an!
An' then gow to Carel wi' me,—
Let her gang to knock-cross wid her scowrnin,
See clanken at market we'll see,
A'll up'od ta' forgit her 'or mwornin'!

(2) Song, by Miss Blamire.

What ails this heart o' mine?
What means this wat'ry e?
What gars me ay turn pale as death
When I tak' leave o' thee?
When thou art far awa',
Thou'll dearer be to me;
But change o' place, and change o' folk,
May gar thy fancy jee.
When I sit down at e'en,
Or walk in morning air,
Ilk rustling bough will seem to say,
I us'd to meet thee there:
Then I'll sit down and wail,
And greet aneath a tree,
And gie a leaf fa' i' my lap,
It's ca't a word frae thee.
I'll hie me to the bow'r
Where yews wi' roses tred,
And where, wi' monie a blushing bud,
I strove my face to hie;
I'll doat on ilka spot,
Where I ha'e been wi' thee,
And ca'to mind some kindly look
'Neath ilka hollow tree.
Wi' sec thoughts i' my mind,
Time thro' the warl may gae,
And find me still, in twenty years,
The same as I'm to-day!

DERBYSHIRE.

"This dialect," observes Dr. Bosworth, "is remarkable for its broad pronunciation. In me the e is pronounced long and broad, as mee. The l is often omitted after a u or o, as aw for all, caw, call, bawd, bold, coud, cold. Words in ing generally omit the g, but sometimes it is changed into k; as think for thing, lovin for loving. They use con for can; conner for cannot; shanner for shall not; wool, wooner for will, and will not; yo for you, &c." Lists of provincial words peculiar to this county have been kindly forwarded by Dr. Bosworth, Thomas Bateman, Esq., the Rev. Samuel Fox, the Rev. William Shilleto, Mrs. Butler, and L. Jewitt, Esq.

A Dialogue between Farmer Bennet and Tummus Lide.

Farmer Bennet. Tummus, why dunner yo mrend meh shoorn?

Tummus Lide. Becos, mester, 'tis so cood, I conner work wee the tachin at aw. I've brockn it ten times I'm shur to de—it freezes so hard. Why, Hester hung out a smock-frock to dry, an in three minits it wor frozen as stiff as a proker, an I conner afford to keep a good fire; I wish I cud, I'd soon mend yore shoorn, an uthers tow. I'd soon yarn sum munney, I warrant ye. Conner yo find sum work for m', mester, these hard times? I'll doo onnythink to addle a penny. I con thresh—I con spilt wood—I con mak spars—I con thack. I con skower a dike, an I con trench tow, but it freezes so hard. I con winner—I con fother, or milk, if there be need on't. I woodner mind drivin plow or onnythink.

Farmer B. I hanner got nothin for ye to doo, Tummus; but Mester Boord towed me jist now that they wor gooin to winnuer, an that they shud want sumbody to help 'em.

Tummus L. O, I'm glad on't. I'll run oor an see whether I con help 'em; bur I hanner bin weeln the threshold or Mester Boord's doer for a nation time, becos I thoot missis didner use Hester well; bur I dunner bear mallice, an so I'll goo.

Farmer B. What did Misses Boord sa or doo to Hester then?

Tummus L. Why, Hester may be wor summut to blame too; for her wor one on 'em, de ye see, that jawd Skimmerton,—the mak-gam that frunted sum o'the gentefook. They said 'twor time to dun wee sich litter, or sich stuff, or I dunner know what they cawd it; but they wor frunted wee Hester bout it; an I said, if they wor frunted wee Hester, they mid bee frunted wee mees. This set missis's back up, an Hester hanner bin a charrin ther sin. But 'tis no use to bear mallice; an so I'll goo oor, and see which we the winde blows.

DEVONSHIRE.

The MS. Ashmole 33 contains an early romance, written about the year 1377, which appears to have been composed by a clergyman living in the diocese of Exeter. Several extracts from it will be found in the following pages. The MS. possesses great interest, having part of the author's original draught of the romance. See farther in Mr. Black's Catalogue, col. 15.

"A Devonshire song" is printed in Wits Interpreter, ed. 1671, p. 171; the "Devonshire ditty" occurs in the same work, p. 247. The Exmoor Scolding and the Exmoor Courtship, specimens of the broad Devonshire dialect at the commencement of the last century, have been lately republished. The third edition was published at Exeter in 1746, 4to. Mr. Marshall has given a list of West Devonshire words in his Rural Economy of the West of England, 1796, vol. i. pp. 323-32, but the best yet printed is that by Mr. Palmer, appended to a Dialogue in the Devonshire Dialect, 8vo. 1837. A brief glossary is also added to the Devonshire Dialogue, 8vo. 1839. My principal guide, however, for the dialectal words of this county is a large MS. collection stated in Mr. Thomas Rodd's Catalogue of MSS. for 1845 (No. 276) to have been written by Dr. Milles, Dean of Exeter, and quoted in this work as Dean Milles' MS. I have been since informed that it was compiled by the late Rev. Richard Hole, but in either case its integrity and value are undoubted. Notes of Devonshire words have been kindly transmitted by the Rev. John Wilkinson, J. H. James, Esq., William Chappell, Esq., Mrs. Lovell, and Mr. J. Metcalfe. The West Country dialect is now spoken in greater purity in Devonshire than in any other county.

The following remarks on the English dialects are taken from Aubrey's Natural History of Wiltshire, a MS. preserved in the library of the Royal Society:

The Northern parts of England speake gutturally; and in Yorkshire and the bishoprick of Durham they have more of the cadener, or Scottish tone than they have at Edinburgh: in like manner, in Herefordshire they have more of the Welch cadener than they have in Wales. The Western people cannot open their mouths to speak ore rotundo. Wee pronounce pool, pile, &c., and especially in Devonshire. The Exeter Coll. men in disputations, when they allege Causa Causant est Causa Causati, they pronounce it, Ozza, Ozza est Oza Ccatti very un-gracefully. Now contra the French and Italians doe naturally pronounce a fully ore rotundo, and e, and even children of French born in England; and the farther you goe South the more fully, &c. NB. This must proceed from the earth or aire, or both. One may observe, that the speech (twang or accent—adiantus) of ye vulgar begins to alter some thing towards the Herefordshirre manner even at Cirencester. Mr. Thom. Hobbs told me, that Sir Charles Cavendish did say, that the Greekes doe sing their words (as the Hereff. doe in some degree). From hence arose the accents, not used by the ancients. I have a conceit, that the Britons of the South part of this Isle, e. g. the Trinobantes, &c., did speak no more gutturally, or twangings, than the inhabitants doe now. The tone, accent, &c., depends on the temper of the earth (and so to plants) and aire.

(1) A Lovers' Dialogue.

Rab. I love dearly, Bet. to hear the tell: but, good loving now, let's tell o'summet else. Time slips away.

Bet. I, fegs, that it dith. I warnis our vokes wonder what the godger's a come o'me. I'll drive home. I wish thee good neart.

Rab. Why there now. Oh, Bet! you guess what I ha to tell about, and you warnt hear me.

Bet. I, say so, co;—a fiddle-de-dee—blind mares.

Rab. There agen!—did ever any boddy hear the like? Well, soce, what be I to do?

Bet. I wish, Rab, you'd leave vetting me. Pithee, let's here no more o'at.

Rab. Well, I see how 'tla. You'll be the death o'me, that's a sure thing.

Bet. Dear hart, how you tell! I the death o' thee!—no, not vor the world, Rab. Why I'd ne'er the heart to hurt thee nor any kindest thing in all my born days. What whimaies you have! Why do ye put yourself in such a pucker?

Rab. Why, because the minnet I go about to break my meend, whipsace, you be a-go, and than I could bite my tongue.

Bet. Why than will you vass me away when you know I can't abide to hear o'at? Good-now, don'tee say no more about et. Us have always been good friends—let us bide so.

Rab. I've now began, and I want let thee go till thee hast a-heard me out.

Bet. Well, I woll, but don'tee cream my hand ao.

Rab. I don't know what I do nor what I say;—many many nears I ha'n't a teen'd my eyes vor thinking o'thee. I can't live so, 'tis never the neer to tell o'at; and I must make an end o'at wan way or t'other. I be bent upon't; therefore don't stand shilly shally, but lookedease, iv thee disn't say thee wid ha me, bevore thicca cloud hath heal'd every cheen o' the moon, sure an double-sure I'll ne'er as thee agen, but go a soger and never see home no more. Lock! lock! my precious, what dist cry vor?

Bet. I be a cruel moody-hearted thiresome body; and you scare wan, you do so. I'm in a sad quandary. Iv I say is, I may be sorry; and if I say no, I may be sorry too, simmet. I hop you widn't use me badly.

Rab. Dist think, my sweeting, I shall a'er be mas'd anew to claw out my own eyes! and thee art deaser to me than they be.

Bet. Hold not so breach now, but hear first what I've to say. You must know, Rab, the leet money I've a croop'd up I be a shirk'd out o', but 'twill never gondee way an. I'll tell thee how I was a need.

Rab. Good-now, lovey, don'tee think o'at. We shall fadgee and find without et. I can work, and will work, an all my carking and carling will be for thee, and everything shall bee as thee woud ha'et. Thee shall do what thee wid.

Bet. I say so too. Co, co, Rab, how you tell! Why, pithee, don'tee think I be such a ninnny-hainmer as to desire et. If 'tis ordained I shall ha thee, I'll do my best to make tha a gude wife. I don't want to be cocker'd. Hark! hark! I don't hear the bell lowering for aight!—'tis, as I live. I shall ha et when I get home.

Rab. If I let thee go now, will meet me agen to-morrow evening in the dimmet?

Bet. No. To-morrow morning at milking time I woll.

Rab. Sure.

Bet. Sure and sure. So I wish thee good neart.

Rab. Neart, neart, my sweeting!

"Dash my buttons, Moll—I'll be darn'd if I know: Us was wools to come yerr and to urn into danger, Let's be off—'a spits wire! lor, do let us go—

Broken-winded;—and yet only see how 'a goes!

'Tis a wonder they don't clap 'us into the pound."

"'A can't be alive, Jan—I don't think 'a can."

"I baidn't sure o' that, Moll, for jist look'ee how

'A breathes like a hoos, or a snivel'd old man:— And hark how he's bust out a caughing, good now.

"And look to this house made o' canvas so smart;

And the dinner set out with such bussle and fuss;—

But us brought a squab ple, you know, in the cart,

And a keg of good alder—so that's nort to us.

"I tell 'ee what 'tis, Moll—this here is my mind,

The world's gone quite mase, as sure as you'm born;

'Tis as true as I'm living—and that they will vind,

With their hosses on wheels that don't live upon corn.

"I woudn't go homeward b'mbye to the varm

Behind such a critter, when all's sed and dun,

We've a travell'd score miles, but we never got harm,

Vor there's nort like a market cart under the sun."

DORSETSHIRE.

"The rustic dialect of Dorsetshire," observes Mr. Barnes, "is, with little variation, that of most of the Western parts of England, which were included in the kingdom of the West Saxons, the counties of Surrey, Hants, Berks, Wilts, and Dorset, and parts of Somerset and Devon." The Dorset dialect, however, has essential features of that of the Western counties which are not heard in Surrey or Hants, as will be sufficiently apparent from the specimens here given. The language of the south-east part of Dorsetshire is more nearly allied to that of Hants.

"In the town of Poole," according to Dr. Salter, "there is a small part which appears to be inhabited by a peculiar race of people, who are, and probably long have been, the fishing population of the neighbourhood. Their manner of speaking is totally different from that of the neighbouring rustics. They have a great predilection for changing all the vowels into short u, using it in the second person, but without a pronoun, and suppressing syllables, e. g. car'n car't, can you not carry it, &c." Mr. Vernon, in remarking upon these facts, observes, "the language of our seamen in general is well worth a close investigation, as it certainly contains not a few archaisms; but the subject requires time and patience, for in the mouths of those who call the Bellerophon and the Ville de Milan, the Billy Ruffian and the Wheel-em-along, there is nothing

"But doth suffer a sea-change Into something new and strange."

This must be received with some limitation, and perhaps applies almost entirely to difficult modern terms not easily intelligible to the uneducated. Many of the principal English nautical terms have remained unchanged for centuries.

Valuable lists of Dorsetshire words have been liberally sent me by the Rev. C. W. Bingham, James Davidson, Esq., Samuel Bagster, Esq., Dr. Salter, and G. Gollop, Esq.; but my principal references have been made to the glossary attached by Mr. Barnes to his "Poems of Rural Life in the Dorset Dialect," 8vo. 1844. The same work contains a dissertation on the dialect, with an account of its peculiar features. The change of o into a, so common in Dorsetshire, completely disappears as we proceed in a westerly direction towards Worcestershire.

Measter, an't please you, I do send Theaz letter to you as a vrend,
Hoping you'll pardon the inditing,
Becaa I am not us'd to writing,
And that you will not take unkind
A word or so from poor George Hind,
For I am always in the way,
And needs must hear what people say.
First of the house they make a joke,
And say the chimnies never smook.
Now the occasion of these jests,
As I do think, where swallows nests,
That chanc'd the other day to vaal
Into the parlour, sut and aal.
Beside, the people not a few
Begin to murmur much at you,
For leaving of them in the lurch,
And letting stralngers serve the church,
Who are in haste to go agen,
Zo, we ha'nt zang the Lord knows when.
And for their preaching, I do know
As well as moost, 'tis but zo, so.
Zure if the call you had were right,
You ne'er could thus your neighbours slight.
But I do fear you've set your slm on Naught in the world but vilthy mammon, &c.

Be gwa'in to flair; an' soo

We'll bring our shiades back out o' town

But merry chaps da like t' unlock

(3) The Woodlands.

O spread agen your leaves an' flow'rs,
Luonesome woodlands! sunny woodlands
Here underneath the dewy show'rs
O' warm-kie'd spring-time, sunny woodlands!
As when, in drong ar oben groun',
Wi' happy buoyish heart I voun'
The twitt'ren birds a-builden roun'
Your high-bough'd hedges, sunny woodlands!
Ya gie'd me life, ya gie'd me jay,
Luonesome woodlands! sunny woodlands!
Ya gie'd me health as in my pliy
I ramblid droo ye, sunny woodlands!
Ya gie'd me freedom var to rove
In airy mead, ar shladly grove;
Ya gie'd me smillen Fanny's love,
The best ov all o't, sunny woodlands
My vust shill skylark whives'd high,
Luonesome woodlands! sunny woodlands!
To sing below your deep-blue sky,
An' white spring-clouds, O sunny woodlands!
An' boughs o' trees that oonce stood here,
Wer glomy green the happy year
That gie'd me oon I lov'd so dear,
An' now ha lost, O sunny woodlands!
O let me rove agen unsplid,
Luonesome woodlands! sunny woodlands!
Along your green-bough'd hedges' side,
As then I ramblid, sunny woodlands!
An' wher the missen trees oonce stood,
Ar tongues oonce rung among the wood,
My memory shall make em good,
Though you've alost em, sunny woodlands!

(4) The Weepen Liady.

When late o' nights, upon the green,
By thik wold house, the moon da sheen,
A liady there, a-hangen low
Her head's a-sak-en to an' fro
In robes so white's the driven snow;
Wi' oon yarm down, while oon da rest
Al lily-white upon the breast
O thik poor weepen liady.
The curdlen win' an' whisen suall
Do shlake the ivy by the wall,
An' miake the pleyen tree-tops rock,
But never ruffle her white frock,
An' slammen door an' rattlen lock
That in thik empty house da sound,
Da never seem to miake lock round
Thik downcast weepen liady,
A liady, as the tiade da goo,
That oonce liv'd there, an' lov'd too true,
Wer by a young man cast aside
A mother sad, but not a bride;
An' then her father in his pride

An' anger offer'd oon o' two Vull bitter things to undergoo
To thik poor weepen liady.

That she herzuf should leave his door,
To darken it agaln noo muore,
Ar that her little playsome chile,
A-sent away a thousand mile,
Should never meet her eyes to smille,
An' ply again, till she in shiame
Should die an' leave a tarolsh'd niams,
A sad variaken liady.

"Let me be lost," she cried, "the while,
I do but know var my poor chile;"
An' left the huome ov al her pride,
To wander droo the wordle wide,
Wi' grief that vew but she ha' tried,
An' lik' a fow'r a blow ha' broke,
She wither'd w'l' thik deadly stroke,
An' died a weepen liady.

An' she da keep a-comen on,
To see thik father dead an' gone,
As if her soul could have noo rest
Avore her teary chink's a-prest
By his vargyl-en klas; soo blest
Be they that can but live in love,
An' vine a place o' rest above,
Unlik' the weepen liady.

DURHAM.

The Durham dialect is the same as that spoken in Northumberland and the North Riding of Yorkshire, the former being more like Scotch, and the latter more like English, but each in a very slight degree. The Durham pronunciation, though soft, is monotonous and drawing. See the 'Quarterly Review' for Feb. 1836, p. 358.

No glossary of Durham words has yet appeared, but Kennett has recorded a considerable number in his MS. Glossary. I have been enabled to add many unknown to that author, derived from communications by the Rev. R. Douglas, George B. Richardson, Esq., Miss Portus, E. T. Warburton, Esq., and Mr. S. Ward.

If the following anecdote be true, Southern English is but little known amongst some of the lower orders in Durham:

"John," said a master tanner in South Durham, the other day, to one of his men, "bring in some fuel." John walked off, revolving the word in his mind, and returned with a pitchfork! "I don't want that," said the wondering tanner: "I want fuel, John." "Beg your pardon," replied the man, "I thought you wanted something to turn over the skins." And off he went again, not a whit the wiser, but ashamed to confess his ignorance. Much meditating, he next pitched upon the besom, shouldering which, he returned to the counting-house. His master was now in a passion. "What a stupid ass you are, John," he exclaimed; "I want some sticks and shavings to light the fire." "O-h-b-h!" rejoined the rustic, "that's what you want, is it?" Why couldn't you say so at first, master, instead of using a London dictionary word?" And, wishful to show that he was not alone in his ignorance, he called a comrade to the tanner's presence, and asked him if he knew what "fuel" was. "Aye!" answered Joe, "ducks an' geese, and sike like!"—Gateshead Observer.

ESSEX.

The dialect of Essex is closely allied in some parts to that of Kent, and in others to that of Suffolk, though generally not so broad, nor spoken with the strong Suffolk whining tone. Mr. Charles Clark has given a glossary of Essex words at the end of 'John Noakes and Mary Styles, or an Essex Calf's Visit to Tiptree Races,' 8vo. 1839, and I am indebted for many others to the kindness of the Rev. W. Pridden and Mr. Edward T. Hill. A list of Essex words is given in the Monthly Magazine for July, 1814, pp. 498-9.

Where people crake so ov the place,
Leas-ways, so I've hard say;

'Bout this oad Hill, I warrant ya,
Their bog it never ceases;
They'd growl shud yow nat own that it

But no sense ov a place, some think,
Is this here hill so high,—
Cos there, full oft, 'tis nacton coad,
But that don't argufy.
Yit, if they their inquritions maake
In winter time, some will Condemn that place as no great shakes,
Where folks ha' the coad-chill!
As sum'dy, 'haps, when nigh the sput,

From Mauldon toun to Keldon 'tis,
An' 'gin a four relest,
Where up the road the load it goes
So lugsome an' so stiff,
That hooses mosly kitch a whop,

But who'd pay a hown when tugging on?
None but a tetchy elf:
Tis right on plain etch chap deserves
A clumy thump himself.

So with um we're not sact.

GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

It has been already remarked that the organic forms of the Gloucestershire dialect have remained unchanged for centuries, and are to be traced in Robert of Gloucester's Chronicle. Many Anglo-Saxon words are here preserved in great purity. "He geunne it him," he gave it him, the verb geunne being in general use amongst the peasantry. The dialect is more similar to that of Somersetshire than of the adjoining counties, though not so strongly marked as a Western dialect. They change o into a, a into e, f into v, t into d, p into b, short a into i or ay, long e into ee, long i into ey, long o into oo. The A.-S. termination en is still preserved; thee is used for thou and you; thilk is in constant use; her is put for she, she for her, I for me, and ou for he, she, or it. Communications of Gloucestershire words have been received from the Rev. H. T. Ellacombe, Miss Shipton, and Mr. E. Wright.

George Ridler's Oven.

The stwons that built George Ridler's oven,
And thauy qeum from the Blakeney's quar;
And his yead it gaw'd above his yare.

One thing of George Ridler I must commend,
And that wur not a notable theng;
He mead his brangs avoort he died,
Wi' any dree brothers his zons as'hou'd seng.

There's Dlek the treble and John the mean,
Let every mon zing in his awn place;
And George he wur the elder brother,
And therevooze he would zing the beass.

Mine hostes's mold (and her neaum 'twur Nell)
A pretty wench, and I lov'd her well;
I lov'd her well, good reason why,
Because ashe lov'd my dog and I.

My dog is good to catch a hen,
A duck or goose is vood for men;
And where good company I spy,
O thether gwoes my dog and I.

My mwother told I when I wur young,
If I did vollow the strong-beer pwoot;
That drenk would prus my auverdrow,
And meak me wear a thread-bare cwoat.

My dog has gotten zitch a trick,
To visit monks when thauy be sick;
When thauy be sick and like to die,
O thether gwoes my dog and I.

When I have dree sispences under my thumb,
O then I be welcome wherever I come;
But when I have none, O then I pass by,
'Tis poverty pearts good company.

If I should die, as it may hap,
My greauce shall be under the good ycal tap;
In vouled earns there wool us lie,
Cheek by jowl my dog and I!

HAMPSHIRE.

The romance of Octovian, according to Mr. D'Israeli, "is in the Hampshire dialect nearly as it is spoken now." Although somewhat doubtful as to the literal correctness of this opinion, an extract from it may be compared with a modern specimen of the dialect. A short glossary of Hampshire words is given in Warner's collections for that county. The dialect of the west of the county is similar to that of Wiltshire, f being changed into v, and th into d; and un for him, her, it. It is a common saying, that in Hampshire every thing is called he except a tomat which is called she.

A Letter to the Editor of the Times, from a poor Man at Andover, on the Union Workhouse.

Sir,—Hunger, as I've heerd say, breaks through Stone Walls; but yet I shodn't have thought of letting you know about my poor Missus's death, but all my neibours say tell it out, and it can't do you no harm and may do others good, specially as Parliament is to meet soon, when the Gentlefok will be talking about the working foke.

I be but a farmers working man, and was married to my Missus 26 years ago, and have three Children living with me, one 10, another 7, and t'other 3. I be subject to bad rumatiz, and never earns no more, as you may judge, than to pay rent and keep our bodies and souls together when we be all well. I was tended by Mr. Westlake when he was Union Doctor, but when the Guardians turned him out it was a bad job for all the Poor, and a precious bad job for me and mine.

Mr. Payne when he come to be our Union Doctor tended upon me up to almost the end of last April, but when I send up to the Union House as usual, Mr. Broad, the Relieving Officer, send back word there was nothing for me, and Mr. Payne wodnt come no more. I was too bad to work, and had not Vittals for me, the Missus, and the young ones, so I was forced to sell off the Bed, Bedstead, and furniture of the young ones, to by Vittals with, and then I and Missus and the young ones had only one bed for all of us. Missus was very bad, to, then, but as we knowd I were no use to ask the Union for nothink cept we'd all go into the Workhouse, and which Missus couldn't a bear, as she'd bin parted from the children, she sends down to tell Mr. Westlake how bad we was a doing off, and he comes to us directly, and tends upon us out of charity, and gives Missus Mutton and things, which he said, and we knowd too well, she wanted of, and he gives this out of his own Pocket.

Missus complaint growd upon her and she got so very bad, and Mr. Westlake says to us, I do think the guardians wouldn't let your wife lay here and starve, but would do something for you if they knowd how bad you wanted things, and so, says he, I'll give you a Sertificate for some Mutton and things, and you take it to Mr. Broad, the relieving officer. Well, I does this, and he tells me that hed give it to the guardians and let me know what they said. I sees him again, and O, says he, I gived that Sertificate to the Guardians, but they chucked it a one side and said they wodnt tend to no such thing, nor give you nothing, not even if Missus was dying, if you has anything to do with Mr. Westlake, as they had turned him off.

I told my Missus this, and then says she we must try to get their Union Doctor, Mr. Payne, as we can't go on for ever taking things from Mr. Westlake's Pocket, and he turned out of Place, and so good to many poor folks besides us. So we gets Mr. Payne after a bit to come down; and he says to Missus you're very bad, and I shall order the Union to send you Mutton and other things. Next Week Mr. Payne calls again, and asks Missus did she have the things he'd ordered for her to have? She says I've had a shillings worth of Mutton, Sir. Why, says he, you wants other things besides Mutton, and I ordered them for you in the Union Book, and you ought to have them in your bad state. This goes on for 5 or 6 weeks, only a shillings worth of Mutton a Week being allowed her, and then one Week a Little Gin was allowed, and after that as Missus couldnt get out of bed a Woman was sent to nurse and help her.

I didnt ask Mr. Payne to order these ere things, tho' bad enof Ood knows they was wanted; but in the first week in last November I was served with a summons to tend afore our Mayor and Justices under the Vagrance Act; I think they said twas cause I had not found these things for Missus myself; but the Union Doctor had ordered em of the Guardians on his sponibility. Well, I attends afore the Justices, and there was nothing against me, and so they puts it off, and orders me to tend afore em again next week, which I does, and then there wasnt enof for em to send me to Gaol, as the Guardians wanted, for a Month, and they puts it off again for another Week, and says I must come afore em again, and which I does; and they tells me theres nothing proved, that I could afford to pay for the things, and I mite go about my business.

I just loses three days' work, or pretty handy, by this, and that made bad a good bit worse. Next Day Mr. Payne comes again, and Missus was so outrageous bad, she says cant you give me something to do me good and ease me a bit; says Mr. Payne, I dont see you be much worse. Yes, I be, says Missus, and I wish you'd be so good as to let me send for Mr. Westlake, as I thinks he knows what'd make me essier, and cure the bad pains I do suffer. Mr. Payne abused my Poor Missus, and dared her to do anything of that sort, and so we were feared to do it, lest I should be pulled up again afore the Justices, and lose more days work, and phaps get sent to Gaol. Eight days after this Mr. Payne never having come nist us, and the Union having lowd us nothing at all, my poor Missus dies, and dies from want, and in agonies of pain, and as bad off as if shed been a Savage, for she could only have died of want of them things which she wanted and I couldnt buy if she'd been in a foreign land, were there no Parsons and People as I've heard tell be treated as bad as dogs.

Years agone, if any body had been half so bad as my Missus, and nobody else would have tended to her, there'd been the clergyman of the parish; at all events, who'd have prayed with her, and seen too that she didn't die of starvation, but our Parson is in favor of this here new Law, and as he gets 60*l.* a year from the Guardians, he aint a going to quarrel with his Bread and Cheese for the likes of we, and so hedidnt come to us. Altho' he must have knowed how ill Missus was; and she, poor creature, went out of this here world without any Spiritual consolation whasomever from the Poor Man's Church.

We'd but one bed as I've telled you, and only one Bedroom, and it was very bad to be all in the same Room and Bed with poor Missus after she were dead; and as I'd no money to pay for a Coffin, I goes to Mr. Broad, then to Mr. Majer, one of the Guardians, and then to the overseers, and axes all of 'em to find a Coffin, but 'twere no use, and so, not knowing what in the World to do, off I goes to tell Mr. Westlake of it, and he was soon down at the House, and blamed me much for not letting he know afore Missus died, and finding we'd no food nor fire, nothing for a shrowd cept we could wash up something, and that we'd no soap to do that with, he gives us something to get these ere things, and tells me to go again to the Relieving Officer and t'others and try and get a Coffin, and to tell un Missus ought to be burried as soon as possible, else t'would make us all ill. This I does as afore, but get nothing, and then Mr. Westlake give me an order where to get a Coffin, and if he had not stood a friend to me and mine, I can't think what would have become of em, as twas sad at Nights to see the poor little things pretty nigh break their hearts when they seed their poor dead mother by their side upon the Bed.

My troubles want to end even here, for strang to tell the Registrar for Deaths for this District dont live in this the largest Parish with about 5000 inhabitants, but at a little Village of not more than 400 People and 5 Miles off, so I had to walk there and back 10 miles, which is very hard upon us poor folk, and what is worse when I got there the Registrar want up; and when he got up he wodnt tend to me afore hed had his breakfast, and I was forced to wait about untill hed had done breakfast, and it seemed as 'twas a very long time for a poor chap like me to be kept a waiting, whilst a man who is paid for doing what I wanted woudnt do such little work as that afore here made hisself comfortable, tho' I telled him how had I wanted to get back, and that I should loose a Day by his keeping me waiting about.

That this is mostly the fault of the Guardians rather than anybody else is my firm beleif, tho' If Mr. Payne had done his duty hed a been with Missus many times afore she died and not have left her as he did, when he knowed she was so bad, and hed a made un give her what she wanted; but then he must do, he says, just what the Guardians wishes, and that arnt to attend much on the Poor, and the Relieving Officer is docked if what he gives by even the Doctors orders arnt proved of by the Guardians sterward, and he had to pay for the little Gin the Doctor ordered out of his own Pocket, and, as the Newspaper says, for the Nurse, as this was put in our Paper by I'm sure I don't know who, but I be-lieves tis true, last week.

And now, Sir, I shall leave it to you to judge whether the Poor can be treated any where so bad as they be in the Andover Union.

HEREFORDSHIRE.

The pronoun a is used for he, she, or it. Strong preterits are current, climb, clomb, heave, hove, pick, puck, shake, shuck, squeeze, squoze, &c. The dialect of this county must be classed as be-longing to the Midland division. The word just is used in rather a peculiar manner. Instead of saying, I have but just returned, they say I re-turned but just. A list of Herefordshire words is given in Duncumb's History of Hereford, and a more extended one has recently been sepa-rately published, 8vo. 1839. I am indebted for many words not to be found in either of these to lists given me by Sir S. R. Meyrick, T. W. Lane, Esq., and Mr. Perry.

HUNTINGDONSHIRE.

There seem to be no peculiarities of dialect here which are not common to the adjoining county of Cambridgeshire. They say mort for a quantity; a mort of people, a mort of rain. To-year for this year, like to-day or to-morrow. Wonderful for very; his pain were wonderful great. To get himself ready, for to dress him-self; he is too weak to get himself ready. If a disorder or illness of any kind be inquired for, they never say it is better or worse, but that's better, or that's worse, with an emphasis on that. The Rev. Joseph Horner kindly favoured me with a list of the few provincial words which may be peculiar to this county.

ISLE OF WIGHT.

The dialect of the native inhabitants of this island differs in many respects from the county to which it is opposite. The accent is rather mincing than broad, and has little of the vulgar character of the West country dialects. The tendency to insert y in the middle of words may be remarked, and the substitution of v for f is not uncommon among the peasantry, but by no means general. The pronunciation may generally be correctly represented by the duplication of the vowels.

No printed glossary of Isle of Wight provin-cialisms has yet appeared, but a very valuable one in MS., compiled by Captain Henry Smith, was most kindly placed at my disposal by his relative, Charles Roach Smith, Esq. F.S.A. It has been fully used in the following pages. Use-ful communications have also been received from E. J. Vernon, Esq., Dr. Bromfield, and Dr. Salter.

KENT.

The modern Kentish dialect is slightly broad, indeed more so than that of Surrey or Sussex. Daiy, playi, waiy, for day, play, way, &c. They say who for how, and vice versa. Mate, instead of boy or lad, is the usual address amongst equals. The interchange of v and w is common here as well as in the metropolis. As in most parts of England, the pronunciation of names of places differs very much from the orthography, e.g. Sunnuck for Sevenoaks, Dairn for Durenth, Leusum for Lewisham, &c. No glossary of Kentish words has yet been published, unless we may so style a short list of words in Lewis's History and Antiquities of the Isle of Tenet, 1736, pp. 35-39, but I have received valuable communications from the Rev. M. H. Lloyd, John Brent, Esq., the Rev. Thomas Streetfeild, the Rev. L. B. Larking, John Pemberton Bartlett, Esq., the Rev. Dr. Hussey, Thomas Wright, Esq., Miss Cotterell, J. R. Hughes, Esq., and A. J. Dunkin, Esq. An early song in this dialect occurs in Ravenscroft's Melismata, 1611.

We have a most curious specimen of the Kentish dialect of the fourteenth century (1340) in the Ayenbyte of Inwyt, a MS. in the Arundel collection. An extract from it will be found at p. 801, and another is here given. The change of f into v, and s into z, are now generally peculiar to the West country dialect, but appear at this early period to have extended over the South of England. In the next century, the broadness of the dialect was not so general. At least, a poem of the fifteenth century, in a MS. at Oxford, written in Kent, is remarkably pure, although the author excuses himself for his language:

And though myn English be sympill to myn entent,
 Hold me excusid, for I was borne in Kent.

MS. Laud. 416, f. 49.

The principal peculiarity in this MS. seems to consist in e being the prefix to the verb instead of i or y. For a long period, however, the dialect of the Kentish peasantry was strongly marked. In a rare tract entitled, "How the Plowman lerned his Paternoster," a character is thus mentioned:

He was patched, torne, and all to-rente;
 It seemed by his langage that he was borne in Kente.
Reliquiæ Antiquæ, vol. i. p. 46.

The following very curious passage from Caxton will further illustrate this fact:

And certaynly our langage now used varyeth ferre from that whiche was used and spoken when I was borne, for we Englysshemen ben borne under the domynacyon of the mone, whiche is never sted-faste, but ever waverynge, wexynge one season, and waneth and dyscreaseth another season; and that comyn Englysshe that is spoken in one shyre varyeth from another, insomuche that in my dayes happened that certayn marchauntes were in a shippe in Tamyse for to have sayled over the see into Zelande, and for lacke of wynde, thei taryed atte Forlond, and wente to lande for to refreshe them. And one of theym, named Sheffielde, a mercer, cam into an hows and axed fur mete, and specially he axyd after eggys; and the goode wyf answerde that she coude speke no Frenshe, and the marchaunt was angry, for he also coude speke no Frenshe, but wolde have hadde eggys, and she understode hym not; and thenne at laste another sayd that he wolde have eyren. Then the good wyf sayd that she understod hym wel. Loo, what sholde a man in thysc dayes now wryte eggys or eyren? Certaynly it is harde to playse every man, because of diversitei and chaunge of langage.
Caxton's Eneydos, 1490.

LANCASHIRE.

The dialect of Lancashire is principally known by Collier's Dialogue, published under the name of Tim Bobbin. A glossary of the fifteenth century, written in Lancashire, is preserved in MS. Lansd. 560, f. 45. A letter in the Lancashire dialect occurs in Braithwaite's Two Lancashire Lovers, 1640, and other early specimens are given in Heywood's Late Lancashire Witches, 4to. 1634, and Shadwell's Lancashire Witches, 4to. 1682. The glossary at the end of Tim Bobbin is imperfect as a collection for the county, and I have been chiefly indebted for Lancashire words to my father, Thomas Halliwell, Esq. Brief notes have also been received from the Rev. L. Jones, George Smeeton, Esq., the Rev. Dr. Hume, G. R. Spencer, Esq., and Mr. R. Proctor. The features of the dialect will be seen from the following specimens; o and ou are changed into a, ea into o, ai into au, g into k, long o into oi, and d final into t. The Saxon termination en is retained, but generally mute.

(3) A Lancashire Ballad.

Now, aw me gud gentles, an yau won tarry,

He soudn's mare Berry at Warikin fair;

He pent too pence on mee when hee had doon.
He gin mee a lurch'n o deuty snig py,
An shaukdt mee blith' haundt most lovingly.
Then Grace, hoo promptd hur, so neeat an so ne.

So Grace got th' money, an whomwardt hoo's gon, Hoo keeps it aw, an gees Gilbert Scott non.

LEICESTERSHIRE.

The dialect of this county has been entirely neglected, with the exception of a few brief remarks in Macaulay's History of Claybrook, 1791; but it deserves a careful study. A valuable glossary of Leicestershire words was given me by Mr. John Gibson, but too late to be used in the early part of the work.

The dialect of the common people, though broad, is sufficiently plain and intelligible. They have a strong propensity to aspirate their words; the letter h comes in almost on every occasion where it ought not, and is as frequently omitted where it ought to come in. The words fine, mine, and such like, are pronounced as if they were spelt foine, moine; place, face, &c. as if they were spelt piace, fiace; and in the plural sometimes you hear placien: clozen for clozes; and many other words in the same style of Saxon termination. The words there and where are generally pronounced thus, theere, wehere; the words mercy, deserve, &c. thus, marcy, deawere. The following peculiarities of pronunciation are likewise observable: us, strongly aspirated, for us, war for was, meed for maid, faither for father, c'ery for every, brig for bridge, thurrough for furrow, haisf for half, cart-rit for rut, maefactory for manufactory, inac, sious for anxious.

other; the former being more nearly allied to that of Yorkshire, the latter to the speech of East Anglia, but neither are nearly so broad as the more Northern dialects. Many singular phrases are in use. They say, Very not well, I used to could, You shouldn't have ought, &c. The Lincolnshire words were partially collected by Skinner in the seventeenth century, but no regular glossary has yet appeared. This deficiency, however, as far as the present work is concerned, has been amply supplied by as many as nineteen long communications, each forming a small glossary by itself, and of peculiar value, from the Rev. James Adcock of Lincoln, to whom I beg to return my best acknowledgments. I have also to acknowledge assistance from Sir E. F. Bromhead, Bart., the Rev. Dr. Oliver, Robert Goodacre, Esq., T. R. Jackson, Esq., Mr. E. Johnson, and papers kindly inserted at my suggestion in the Lincoln Standard.

Cum, Sall, its time we started now,
Yon's Farmer Haycock's lasses ready,
And maister says he'll feed the cow,
He didn't say so,—did he Neddy?

Yees, that he did, so make thee haste,
And git thee sen made smart and pretty,
We yaller ribbon round the walest,
The same as oud Squire Lowden's Kitty.
And I'll go fetch my alster Bess,
I'm aartin sure she's up and ready,
Come gie's a bus, thou can't do less,
Says Sally, No, thou musn't, Neddy.
See, yonder's Bess a cummlin cross

All halm be halm, and brother Joss
A shouting to the folks as passes.
Odds dickens, Sall, we'll hev a spree,
Me heart's as light as ony feather,
There's not a chap dost russel me,
Not all the town's chaps put together.

MIDDLESEX.

The metropolitan county presents little in its dialect worthy of remark, being for the most part merely a coarse pronunciation of London slang and vulgarity. The language of the lower orders of the metropolis is pictured very faithfully in the works of Mr. Dickens. The interchange of v and w is a leading characteristic. Some of the old cant words, mixed with numerous ones of late formation, are to be traced in the London slang.

The Thimble Rig.

"Now, then, my jolly sportsmen! I've got more money than the parson of the parish. Those as don't play can't vin, and those as are here harnt there! I'd hold any on you, from a tanner to a sovereign, or ten, as you don't tell which thimble the pea is under." "It's there, sir." "I barr tellings." "I'll go it again." "Wat you don't see don't look at, and wat you do see don't tell. Illiould you a soverren, sir, you don't tell me vitch thimble the pea is under." "Lay him, sir, (in a whisper); it's under the middle'un. I'll go you halves." "Lay him another; that's right." "I'm blow'd but we've lost; who'd a thought it?" Smack goes the flat's hat over his eyes; exit the confederates with a loud laugh.

NORFOLK.

"The most general and pervading characteristic of our pronunciation," observes Mr. Forby, "is a narrowness and tenuity, precisely the reverse of the round, sonorous, mouth-filling tones of Northern English. The broad and open sounds of vowels, the rich and full tones of diphthongs, are generally thus reduced." The same writer enters very minutely into the subject of the peculiarities of this dialect, and his glossary of East Anglian words, 2 vols. 8vo. 1830, is the most complete publication of the kind. A brief list of Norfolk words is given in Brown's Certain Miscellany Tracts, 8vo. 1684, p. 146. A glossary of the provincialisms of the same county occurs in Marshall's Rural Economy of Norfolk, 1787, and observations on the dialect in Erratics by a Sailor, 1809. In addition to these, I have had the advantage of using communications from the Rev. George Munford, the Very Rev. F. C. Husebeth, Mrs. Robins, and Goddard Johnson, Esq.

A vocabulary of the fifteenth century, written in Norfolk, is preserved in MS. Addit. 12195, but the Promptorium Parvulorum is a much more valuable and extensive repository of early Norfolk words. A MS. of Capgrave's Life of St. Katherine in the Bodleian Library, MS. Rawl. Poet. 118, was written in this county. It would appear from the following passage that Norfolk was, in early times, one of the least refined parts of the island:

I wende rifynge were restitucion, quod he,
For I lerned nevere rede on boke;
And I kan no Frenshe, in felth,
But of the fertheeste ende of Northfolk.

NORTHAMPTONSHIRE.

A midland dialect, less broad and not so similar to the Northern as Warwickshire. I have to acknowledge communications on the dialect of this county from the Rev. J. B. P. Dennis, and Charles Young, Esq.

NORTHUMBERLAND.

Northumberland has a dialect the most broad of all the English counties, nearly approaching the Scotch, the broadest of all English dialects. The Scottish dur is heard in this county and in the North of Durham. A large number of specimens of the dialect have been published, and the provincial words have been collected by Mr. Brockett, but no extensive glossary of words peculiar to the county has been published separately. A short list, however, is given in Ray's English Words, ed. 1691; and others, recently collected, were sent me by George B. Richardson, Esq. and the Rev. R. Douglas. An early specimen of the Northumberland dialect occurs in Bullein's Dialogue, 1564, reprinted in Waldron's notes to the Sad Shepherd, p. 187.

NOTTINGHAMSHIRE

Formerly belonged in dialect to the Northern division, but may now, I believe, be included in the Midland. I speak, however, with uncertainty, no work on the Nottinghamshire dialect having yet appeared.

From a Treatise on the Fistula in ano, by John Arderne, of Newcark.

Johan Arderne fro the first pestelence that was in the yere of our Lord 1349, duelled in Newerke in Nottinghamshire unto the yere of our Lorde 1370, and ther I heled many men of fistula in ano: of which the first was Sir Adam Everyngham of Laxton in the Clay byside Tukkesford, whiche Sir Adam for sothe was in Gascone with Sir Henry that tyme named herle of Derby, and after was made Duke of Lancastre, a noble and worthy lord. The forsaide Sir Adam forsoth sufferend fistulam in ano, made for to aske counsell at alle the leches and courgers that he myght fynd in Gascone, at Burdeaux, at Brigerac, Tolows, and Neyyon, and Peyters, and many other places, and alle forsake hym for incurable; whiche yase and y-herde, the forsaide Adam hastled for to torne home to his contree, and when he come home he did of al his knyghtly clothynge, and cladde mournynge clothes in purpose of abydyng dissolvynge or lesynge of his body beyng nyg to hym. At the laste I forsaide Johan Arderne y-soft, and covenant y-made, come to hym and did my cure to hym, and, our Lorde beyng mene, I heled hym perfetly within halfe a yere, and afterward hole and sound he ledde a glad life 30 yere and more. For whiche cure I gate myche honour and lovyng thurgh alle Ynglond; and the forsaide Duke of Lancastre and many other gentiles wondred therof. Afterward I cured Hugon Derlyng of Fowlek of Balne by Snythe. Afterward I cured Johan Schefeld of Rightwelle aside Tekille.

MS. Sloane 563, f. 124.

OXFORDSHIRE.

The provincial speech of this county has none of the marked features of the Western dialect, although many of the Gloucestershire and Wiltshire words are in use. The Oxfordshire dialect may be described as rather broad, and at the same time sharp, with a tendency to contraction. Us is used instead of I, as in some other counties. There are not a large number of words quite peculiar to the county, and no glossary has yet been published. Kennett has preserved many now obsolete, and I am indebted for several to Mr. A. Chapman, and Francis Francillon, Esq. In the sixteenth century, the Oxfordshire dialect was broad Western. In Scogin's Jestes, we have an Oxfordshire rustic introduced, saying ich for I, dis for this, vay for say, chill for I will, vor for for, &c.

RUTLANDSHIRE.

The dialect of Rutlandshire possesses few, if any, features not to be found in the adjoining counties. It would appear to be most similar to that of Leicestershire, judging from a communication on the subject from the Rev. A. S. Atcheson.

SHROPSHIRE.

In the modern dialect of this county, a is frequently changed into o or e; c into g, co into gu; d final is often suppressed or commuted into t in the present tense; e is sometimes lengthened at the commencement of a word, as eeend, end, and it is frequently changed into a; g is often omitted before h; the h is almost invariably wrongly used, omitted where it should be pronounced, and pronounced where it should be omitted; i is changed into ei or e; l into w; o is generally lengthened; r when followed by s is often dropped, the s in such cases being doubled; t is entirely dropped in many words where it precedes s, and is superseded by e, especially if there be any plurality; y is prefixed to a vast number of words which commence with the aspirate, and is substituted for it. See further observations in Mr. Hartshorne's Shropshire glossary appended to his Salopia Antiqua, 8vo. 1841, from which the above notices of the peculiarities of the dialect have been taken. To this work I have been chiefly indebted for Shropshire words, but many unknown to Mr. Hartshorne have been derived from Lhuyd's MS. additions to Ray, a MS. glossary compiled about 1780, and from communications of the Rev. L. Darwall and Thomas Wright, Esq.

A translation of the Para Oculi in English verse, made by John Mirkes, a canon of Lilleslul, in Shropshire, is preserved in MS. Cotton. Claud. A. ii. and MS. Douce 60, 103, manuscripts of the fifteenth century. The poem commences as follows:

God seyth hymself, as wryten we fynde,
That whenne the bynde ledeth the bynde,
Into the dyche they fallen boo,
For they ne sen whare by to go.

MS. Cott. Claud. A. ii. f. 127.

God seith hymself, as wryten y fynde,
That whan the bynde ledeth the bynde,
Into the diche they falleth bo,
For they ne seen howe they go.

MS. Douce 60, f. 147.

It should not be forgotten that the dialect of a MS. is not necessarily that used by the author himself. It oftener depended on the scribe. We have copies of Hampole's Prick of Conscience written in nearly every dialect.

The poems of John Audelay, a monk of Haghamon, who wrote about 1460, afford a faithful specimen of the Shropshire dialect of that period. A small volume of his poetry was printed by the Percy Society, 8vo. 1844:

As I lay ake in my langure,
In an abbay here be West.
This boke I made with gret dolour,
When I mygt not slep ne have no rest:
Oft with my prayers I me blest,
And sayd hylé to heven kyng,
I knowlache, Lord, hit is the best
Mekelé to take thi vsetyng,
Ellis wot I wil that I were lorne,
Of al lordis be he blest!
Fore al that ye done is fore the best,
Fore in thi defawte was never mon lost,
That is here of womon borne.

Mervel ye not of this makyng,
Fore I me excuse, hit is not I;
This was the Holé Gost werchenge,
That sayd these wordis so faythfully:
Fore I quoth never bot hye foly,
God hath me chastyst fore my levyng!
I thong my God my grace treuly
Fore his gracious vsetyng.
Beware, seris, I youe pray,
Fore I mad this with good entent,
In the reverens of God omnipotent;
Prays fore me that beth present,
My name is Jon the bynd Awdlay.

The similarities between the dialect of Audelay's poems and that of modern Shropshire are not very easily perceptible. The tendency to turn o into a, and to drop the h, may be recognized, as ald for hold, &c. I is still turned into e, which may be regarded as one of Audelay's dialectical peculiarities, especially in the prefixes to the verbs; but the ch for sh or sch, so common in Audelay, does not appear to be still current. There is much uncertainty in reasoning on the early provincial dialects from a single specimen, owing to the wide difference between the broad and the more polished specimens of the language of the same county; and Audelay's poems can be by no means considered as affording an example of the broadest and purest early Salopian dialect.

SOMERSETSHIRE:

The Parret divides the two varieties of the dialects of Somersetshire, the inhabitants of the West of that river using the Devonshire language, the difference being readily recognized by the broad ise for i, er for he, and the termination th to the third person singular of the present tense of the indicative mood. The Somersetshire dialect changes th into d, s into x, f into v, inverts the order of many of the consonants, and adds y to the infinitive of verbs. It also turns many monosyllables into words of two syllables, as ayer, air, boodth, both, fayer, fair, viér, fire, slayers, stairs, shower, sure, &c. See Jennings' Observations on some of the Dialects in the West of England, 1825, p. 7.

A singularly valuable glossary of Somersetshire words was placed in my hands at the commencement of the present undertaking by Henry Norris, Esq., of South Petherton. It was compiled about fifty years since by Mr. Norris's father, at the suggestion of the late Mr. Boucher, and Mr. Norris has continually enriched it with additions collected by himself. To this I am indebted for several hundred words which would otherwise have escaped me; and many others have been derived from lists formed by my brother, the Rev. Thomas Halliwell, of Wrington, Thomas Elliott, Esq., Miss Elizabeth Carew, the Rev. C. W. Bingham, Mr. Elijah Tucker, and Mr. Kemp.

Numerous examples of the Somersetshire dialect are to be found in old plays, in which country characters are frequently introduced, and in other early works. It should, however, be remarked that many writers have unhesitatingly assigned early specimens, containing the prevailing marks of Western dialect, to this county, when the style might be referred to many others in the South and West of England; and on this account I have omitted a list of pieces stated by various authors to be specimens of Somersetshire dialect. We have already seen that though the essential features of the present West country dialect may be found, they may possibly suit specimens of the South, Kent, or even Essex dialects, in the state the latter existed two or three centuries ago.

STAFFORDSHIRE.

Kennett has recorded numerous Staffordshire provincialisms, most of which are probably now obsolete, and would have escaped me but for his valuable collections. A valuable MS. glossary by Mr. Clive, but extending no further than B in the part seen by me, was also found of use, and a few words in neither of these MSS. were given me by Miss L. Marshall and Mr. Edward T. Gooch. The following specimen of the dialect, taken from Knight's 'Quarterly Magazine,' 1823, will sufficiently exhibit its general character. The lengthening of the vowel i appears very common. In the collieries surnames are very frequently confused. It constantly happens that a son has a surname very different from that of his father. Nicknames are very prevalent, e. g. Old Puff, Nosey, Bullyhed, Loy-a-bed, Old Blackbird, Stumpy, Cowskin, Spindle-shanks, Cockeye, Pigtail, Yellow-belly, &c.

Dialect of the Bilston Folk.

The dialect of the lower order here has frequently been noticed, as well as the peculiar countenance of the real "Bilston folk." We noticed ourselves (upon the excursion) the following:—"Thee chãt'n't," for "you sh'a'n't;" "thee cost'na," for "you can't;" "thee host aff, surry, or oil mosh thoi yed fur thee," for "take yourself away, sirrah, or I'll crush your head;" "weear blist thee?" for "where are you?" "in a cazulty wee loik," for "by chance;" with "thee blist, thee shonna;" "you are, you sh'a'n't." A young woman turned round to address a small child crying after her upon the threshold of the hovel, as she went off towards the mine, "Ah, be seized, yung'un if thee dos'n'r kuoo' my back as well as thee knoo-as't moy fee-as." Some of the better apparelled, who affect a superior style, use words which they please to term "dicksunary words," such as "easement, convinctated, abstimonious, timothy" (for timid). One female, in conversation with a crony at the "truck-shop" door, spoke of "Sal Johnson's aspirating her mon's mind soo'a, and 'mactiating his temper," and "I never seed a sentiment o' nothin' bod till it took Tum all at once't," (sentiment here used for symptom) speaking of indisposition.—Wanderings of a Pen and Pencil.

Conversation between a Staffordshire Canal Boatman and his Wife.

Lady. Dun yo know Solden-mouth, Tummy?
Gent. Eees; an' a' neation good feller he is tew.
Lady. A desput quoeit mon! But he loves a sup o'drink. Dun yo know his wof?
Gent. Know her! ay. Her's the very devil when her sperit's up.
Lady. Her is. Her uses that mon sheamful—her rags him every neet of her loif.
Gent. Her does. Olive known her come into the public and call him all the neames her could lay her tongue tew afore all the company. Her oughts to stay till her's got him i' the boat, and then her mit say wha her'd a moind. But her taks alter her feyther.
Lady. Hew was her feyther?
Gent. Whoy, singing Jemmy.
Lady. Oi don't think as how Oi ever know'd singing Jemmy. Was he ode Soaker's brother?
Gent. Eees, he was. He lived a top o' Hell Bonk. He was the wickedest, swearinist mon as ever I know'd. I should think as how he was the wickedest mon i' the wold, and say he had the rheumatis so bad.

SUFFOLK.

The characteristics of the Suffolk dialect are in all essential particulars the same as those of the Norfolk, so carefully investigated by Mr. Forby. The natives of Suffolk in speaking elevate and depress the voice in a very remarkable manner, so that "the Suffolk whine" has long been proverbial. The natives of all parts of East Anglia generally speak in a kind of sing-song tone. The first published list of Suffolk words is given in Cullum's History of Hawsted, 1784, but no regular glossary appeared till the publication of Major Moor's Suffolk Words and Phrases, 8vo. 1823, a very valuable collection of provincialisms. With the greatest liberality, Major Moor kindly placed in my hands his interleaved copy of this work, containing copious and important additions collected by him during the last twenty years; nor have I been less fortunate in the equally liberal loan of most valuable and numerous MS. additions to Forby's East Anglia, collected in Suffolk by D. E. Davy, Esq. Brief lists have also been sent by Miss Agnes Strickland and the Rev. S. Charles.

An early book of medical receipts, by a person who practised in Suffolk in the fifteenth century, is preserved in MS. Harl. 1735; an English poem, written at Clare in 1445, is in MS. Addit. 11814; and Bokenham's Lives of the Saints in MS. Arundel 327, transcribed in 1447, is also written in the Suffolk dialect.

SUSSEX.

The dialect of the East of Sussex is very nearly the same as that of Kent, while that of the West is similar to the Hampshire phraseology. "In Sussex," says Ray, English Words, ed. 1674, p. 80, "for hasp, clasp, wasp, they pronounce hapse, clapse, wapse, &c.; for neck, nick; for throat, throtle; for choak, choek; let'n down, let'n stand, come again and let'n auon." These observations still hold good. In East Sussex day is pronounced dee, and the peasantry are generally distinguished for a broad strong mode of speaking. They pronounce ow final as er, but this habit is not peculiar; and they often introduce an r before the letters d and t. A "Glossary of the Provincialisms in use in the County of Sussex," by W. D. Cooper, was printed in 1836, a neat little work, a copy of which, with numerous MS. additions, was kindly sent me by the author. Several Sussex words, not included in Mr. Cooper's list, were sent to me by M. A. Lower, Esq., the Rev. James Sandham, Colonel Davies, and M. T. Robinson, Esq.; and Mr. Holloway's General Dictionary of Provincialisms, 8vo. 1838, contains a considerable number.

Tom. Why, Jim, where a bin?
Jim. Down to look at the ship.
Tom. Did ye look at the stack?
Jim. Umps, I did, and it roakes terrible!
Tom. Why didn't ye make a hole in it?
Jim. I be guin to it.
Tom. It's a pity, 'twas sich a mortal good 'un.
Jim. Es sure! Well, it's melancholy fine time for the crops, aint it?
Tom. Ah! It'll be ripping time pretty soon now.
Jim. Ah! I shan't do much at that for the

Tom. What be guin to do with that ere jug?
You'd better let it bide. Do you think the chimbley sweeper will come to-day?
Jim. Iss! he's safe to come, let it be how t'wull.
Tom. Which way do you think he'll come?
Jim. He'll come athirst and across the common.
Tom. What, caterways, aye?
Jim. Iss. Did you mind what I was a telling of?
Tom. To be sure; but dang ye if I could sense it, could you?
Jim. Lor, yis. I don't think it took much cute-ness to do that!

WARWICKSHIRE.

The following observations on the dialect of this county are taken from a MS. glossary of Warwickshire words, compiled by the late Mr. T. Sharp, and kindly communicated to me by Mr. Staunton, of Longbridge House, near Warwick: "The diphthong ea is usually pronounced like ai, as maut, ait, plaise, paice, waik, say, for meat, eat, please, weak, sea. The vowel o gives place to u, in sung, lung, amung, for song, long, among; wunst for once; grun, fun, and pun, for ground, found, and pound. Shownd is also frequent for the imperative of show. A and o are often interchanged, as drap, shap, yander, for drop, shop, yonder; and (per contra) hammer, rot, and gonder, for hammer, rot, and gander. J is substituted for d, in juke, jell, jeth, and jed, for duke, deal, death, and dead; whilst juice is often pronounced duce. D is added to words ending in own, as drowned and gownd, for *drown*ed and gown. E is sometimes converted into a, as batty, laft, fatch, for betty, left, and fetch. The nom. case and the acc. are perpetually and barbarously confounded in such phrases as, "They ought to have spoke to we; her told him so; he told she so; us wont be hurt, will us?" This is one of our most grating provincialisms." This MS. glossary has been fully used in the following pages. I have also received communications from Mr. Perry, Mr. W. Reader, the Rev. W. T. Bree, the Rev. J. Staunton, Mr. J. T. Watson, and Thomas Haslewood, Esq. The modern dialect of Warwickshire contains a very large proportion of North country words, more than might have been expected from its locality. They say yat for gate, feut, fool, sheeam, shame, wecat, wheat, Yethard, Edward, Jecams, James, lecan, lane, rooad, road, wool, will, p-yaaper, paper, feence, face, wocat, cost, &c.

WESTMORELAND.

"A bran new Wark by William de Worfat, containing a true Calendar of his thoughts concerning good nebbherhood," 12mo. Kendal, 1785, pp. 44, is a good specimen of the Westmoreland dialect, but of great rarity. This dialect is very similar to that of Cumberland.

WILTSHIRE.

The dialect of this county is so nearly related to that which is denominated the West-Country dialect, that the distinction must be sought for in words peculiar to itself rather than in any general feature. The Saxon plural termination en is still common, and oi is generally pronounced as ui. Instances of their perfects may be cited, snap, snopt, hide, hod, lead, lod, scrape, scrope, &c. Some of their phrases are quaint. That's makes me out, puzzles me; a kind of a middling sort of a way he is in, out of sorts, &c. Mr. Britton published a glossary of Wiltshire words in his Topographical Sketches of North Wilts, vol. iii, pp. 369-80; and a more complete one by Mr. Akerman has recently appeared, 12mo. 1842. Many words peculiar to this county will be found in the following pages which have escaped both these writers, collected chiefly from Kennett, Aubrey, and MS. lists by the Rev. Dr. Hussey, Dr. S. Merriman, the Rev. Richard Crawley, and Mr. M. Jackson. The Chronicon Vilodunense, edited by W. H. Black, fol. 1830, is a specimen of the Wiltshire dialect in the fifteenth century. It is so frequently quoted in this work that any further notice is unnecessary. The following clever pieces in the modern dialect of the county are from the pen of Mr. Akerman.

(1) The Harnet and the Bittle.

A harnet set in a hollar tree,—

A proper spiteful twoad was he;

And a merrily sung while he did zet

His stinge as shearp as a bagganet:

Oh, whoso vine and bowld as I,

I veats nor bee, nor wapse, nor vly!

A bittle up thuck tree did clim,

And scarnvully did look at him;

Zays he, "Zur harnet, who giv thee

A right to zet in thuck there tree?"

Vor ael you senga so nation vine,

I tell 'e 'tis a house o' mine."

The harnet's conscience velt a twinge,

But grawin' bowld wi his long stinge,

Zays he, "Possession's the best Bittw;

Zo here th' sha'm't put a cläw!

Be off, and leave the tree to me,

The mikes's good enough for thee!"

Just then a yuckel, passin' by,

Was axed by them the cause to try:

"Ha! ha! I see how 'tis!" zays he,

"They'll make a vamous munch vor me!"

His bill was shearp, his stomach lear,

Zo up a snapped the caddlin pair!

MORAL.

They'll take your cwoat and carcass too!

I've allus bin as vlush o' money as a twoad is o' veathers; but if ever I gets rich, I'll put it ael in Zisseter bank, and not do as owd Smith, the miller, did, comin' whoam vrom market one nite. Martal avraid o' thieves a was, so a puta his pound-bills and ael th' money a'd got about un in a hole in the wall, and the next marnin' a' couldn't remember whereabouts 'twas, and had to putt purty nigh a mile o' wall down before a' could vind it. Stoopid owd wosbird!

Owd Jan Wilkins used to zay he allus cut's stakes, when a went a heislin', too lang, bekase a' cou'd easily cut 'em sharter if a' wanted, but a' cou'dnt make um langer if 'em was too shart. Zo zays I: so I allus axes vor more than I wants. Iv I gets that, well and good; but if I axes vor little, and gets less, it's martal akkerd to ax a second time, d'ye know!

Piple zay as how they gied th' neam o' moonrakers to us Wiltshire vauk bekase a passel o' stupid bodles one night tried to rake the shadow o' th' moon out o' th' bruk, and tuk't vor a thin cheese. But that's th' wrong ind o' th' stwory. The chaps as was doin' o' this was smugglers, and they was a vishin' up some kegs o' aperrits, and only pertended to rake out a cheese! Zo the exciseman as axed 'em the question had his grin at 'em; but they had a good laugh at he when 'em got whoame the stuff.

Owd Molly Sannell axed Molly Dafter to gie her a drap o' barm one day. "I ha'n't a got barm!" says she; "bezides, I do want un meself to bake wi'."

Measter Goddin used to zay as how children costed a sight o' money to breng un up, and 'twas all very well whilst um was leetle, and sucked th' mother, but when um began to suck the vather, 'twas nation akkerd.

Measter Cuss and his sun Etherd went to Lonnun a leetle time sence, and when um got to their journey's ind, Measter Cuss missed a girl passel a carr'd wi' un to th' cwoach. "Lard, vather!" zays Etherd, "I seed un drap out at Vise!" (Devises.)

(3) North Wiltshire eloquence.

"Now, do'e plaze to walk in a bit, sur, and rest'e, and dwont'e mind my measter up ag'in th' chimley carner. Poor sowl on him, he've a bin despart ill ever sence t'other night, when a wur tuk ter'ble bad wi' th' rheumatis in's legs and stummick. He've a bin and tuk drie bottles o' doctor's stuff, but I'll be whipped if a do simbly a bit th' better var't. Lawk, sur, but I be main scrow to be ael in zich a caddel, ael alang o'they children. They've a bin a lensin', and when um coomesl whoame, they ael tuk and drowed the carn ael amang th' vire stuff, and so here we be, ael in a muggle like. And you be lookin' middlilish, sur, and ael as if e was shrammed. I'll take and blew up th' vire a mossel; but what be them belises at? here they be slat a-two! and here's my yepurn they've a bin and scarched, and I've agot narra' nother 'gin Zunday bespeets thium!"

This elegant sample of North Wiltshire eloquence was uttered nearly in a breath, by Mistress Varges, the wife of a labourer with a large family, as the poor man's master entered the cottage to inquire after his health, and whether he would be soon able to return to his work.

WORCESTERSHIRE.

In Worcestershire, the peculiarity of speech most striking to a stranger is perhaps the interchange of her and she, e. g. "her's going for a walk with she." This perversion is even used in the genitive, "she's bounet." As in Gloucestershire and Herefordshire, the pronoun which is constantly used to connect sentences, and to act as a species of conjunction. At a recent trial at Worcester, a butcher, who was on his trial for sheep-stealing, said in defence, "I bought the sheep of a man at Broomsgrove fair, which he is a friend of the prosecutor's, and won't appear; which I could have transported the prosecutor ever so long ago if I liked." As in many other counties, the neuter is frequently invested with the masculine gender. A more striking feature is the continual dropping of the i in such words as stair, fair, pronounced star, far, &c.; and the letter r is sometimes sounded between a final vowel, or vowel-sound, and an initial one. No works on the dialect of this county have yet appeared, and the majority of the words here quoted as peculiar to it have been collected by myself. I have, however, received short communications from J. Noake, Esq., Jabez Allies, Esq., Miss Bedford, Mrs. John Walcot, Thomas Boulton, Esq., Mr. R. Bright, and Mr. William Johnson. The following extract is taken from a MS. in my possession.

Extract from a MS. of medical receipts written by Syr Tomas Jamys, Vicar off Badeseye, about the year 1450.

For the skawle a gode medcyn. Take pedylyon to handfulls ever that he be slowryd, and than he ys tendur, and than take and sethe hym welle in a potelle of stronge lye tille the to halfe be soddyn away, and than wesche the skallyd hede in stronge pyse that ys hoots, and than schave away the schawle clene, and let not for bledyng; and than make a plasture of pedylyon, and ley it on the hede gode and warme, and so let it ly a day and a nyth, and than take it away, and so than take thy mele and ronnyng watour of a broke, and therof make theke papelettes, and than sprede them on a clothe that wolle cover al the soore, and so ley it on the sore hede, and let it ly iij. dayys and iij. nyhtes ever it be remeycyd, and than take it of, and wesche the hede welle in strong pyse ayenne, and than take and schave it clene to the flesche, and than take redo oynowce as many as wolle suffyce for to make a plasture over the sore, and boyle them welle in watour, and than stampe them, and temper them with the softe of calamyte, and old barow gresse that ys maltyns clene, and so use this tylie the seke be hole.

There are numerous early MSS. still preserved which were written in various parts of Yorkshire, most of them containing marks of the dialect of the county. The Towneley Mysteries, which have been printed by the Surtees Society, were written in the neighbourhood of Wakefield. An English commentary on the Psalms, translated from the Latin work by Hampole, a MS. in Eton College Library, was also written in this county, the writer observing, "in this werke I seke no strange Inglyshe bot the lightest and the comonest, and swilke that es maste like til the Latyn, so that thas that knawes noght the Latyn by the Inglyshe may come to many Latyn wordes." A metrical translation of Grosthead's Chateau d'Amour, in MS. Egerton 927, was made by a "munke of Sallay," who calls it "the Myroure of lewed Men." To these may be added MS. Harl. 1022, MS. Harl. 5396, MS. Coll. Sion. xviii. 6, and the Thornton MS. so often quoted in the following pages.

Higden, writing about 1350, says "the whole speech of the Northumbrians, especially in Yorkshire, is so harsh and rude that we Southern men can hardly understand it;" and Wallingford, who wrote long before, observes that "there is, and long has been, a great admixture of people of Danish race in that province, and a great similarity of language." See the 'Quarterly Review,' Feb. 1836, p. 365. There seem to be few traces of Danish in the modern Yorkshire dialect.

So numerous are modern pieces in the Yorkshire dialect, that it would be difficult to give a complete list. The rustic of this county has even had a newspaper in his native dialect, the 'Yorkshire Comet,' the first number of which appeared in March, 1844; but in consequence of certain personal allusions giving offence, the publisher was threatened with a prosecution, and he relinquished the work after the publication of the seventh number, and refused to sell the objectionable parts. The most complete glossary of Yorkshire words was compiled by Mr. Carr, 2 vols. 8vo. 1828, but it is confined to Craven, the dialect said to be used by Chaucer's North country scholars. See Mr. Wright's edition, vol. i. p. 160. Dr. Willan's list of words used in the mountainous district of the West-Riding, in the Archæologia, vol. xvii. pp. 138-167, should also be noticed; and long previously a Yorkshire glossary appeared at the end of the Praise of Yorkshire Ale, 12mo. 1697. Thoresby's list of West-Riding words, 1703, was published in Ray's Philosophical Letters; and Watson gives a "Vocabulary of Uncommon Words used in Halifax Parish" in his History of Halifax, 1775. These latter have been reprinted in the Hallamshire Glossary, 8vo. 1829, a small collection of words used in the neighbourhood of Sheffield. The Sheffield dialect has been very carefully investigated in an Essay by the Rev. H. H. Piper, 12mo. 1825. In addition to the printed glossaries, I have had the advantage of using MS. lists of Yorkshire words communicated by Wm. Turner, Esq., William Henry Leatham, Esq., Henry Jackson, Esq., Dr. Charles Rooke, the Rev. P. Wright, Mr. M. A. Denham, Mr. Thomas Sanderson, John Richard Walbran, Esq., Mr. Banks, and N. Scatcherd, Esq.

- (2) Dicky Dickeson's Address to't knawen world, from the first number of the Yorkshire Comet, published in 1844.

DEAR LIVERYBODY,

Ah sud'nt wonder bud, when some foaks hear o' me startin' on a Paper, they'll say, what in't world hez maade Dicky Dickeson bethink hisen o' cummin' sich a caasper as that? Wah, if ye'll nobbut hev hauf o't pautience o' Joab, Ah'll try ta tell ya. Ye mun know, 'at about six year ago', Ah wur l' a public-house, wheare ther wur a feller as wur braggin' on his larnin', an' so Ah axed him what he knawed about onny knowledgement, an' he said he thowt he'd a rare lump moare information l' his heead, ner Ah hed l' mine. Noo, ye know, Ah sudn't ha' been a quarter as ill mad, if ther hedn't been a lot o' chaps in't place 'at reckoned ta hev non small share o' gumption. Soa, as soolin as Ah gat hoame that neet, Ah sware ta oor Bet, 'at as suare as shoo wur a match-hawker, Ah wud learn all't polishments 'at Schoolmaster Gill could teich ma. Varry weel, slap at it Ah went, makk'n pot-hukes, an' strookes, an' Ah hardly knaws what; an' then Ah leearn't spelderin', readin', i' fact, all 'at long-headed Schoolmaster Gill knew hisen; so 'at, when Ah'd done wi' him, Ah wur counted as clever a chap as me feyther afore ma, an' ye mun consider 'at Ah wur non small beer when Ah'd come ta that pass, for he could tell, boot lukin', hoo mich paaper it wud tak' ta tap up an ounce o' 'bacca. Weel, as soolin as Ah'd gotten ta be as wonderful wise, d'ye see? Ah thowt—an' it wur a blister thowt, tew!—what a pity it wor 'at liverybody couldn't dew as much as Ah could. More Ah studied about it, an' war it potted ma, Ah'll assuare ya. Wun neet, hooliver, as oor Bet an' me wur set bet't fire-side, shoo turned hersen suddenly roond, an' said, "Thoo's a fool! Dicky!" "What! Bet, does thoo really mean ta say Ah's a fool?" "Ah dew," shoo said: "thoo's a real fool!" "Hoo does ta mak' that oot, Bet?" said Ah, for Ah wur noane hauf suited about it. "Ah'll say it ageen an' ageen," says shoo; "thoo's a fool, an' if ta's onny way partikelar ta know, Ah'll tell tha hoo Ah maks it oot. In't first place, luke what brains thoo hez; as starlin' as onny 'at liver thease gurt men hed; an' yet, like a fool! as Ah say thoo is, thoo taks it as easy as a pig in't muck." "Weel, weel," Ah contin'd, "what wud ta ha' ma ta dew, lass? Tell us, an' Ah'll dew't." "Then," says shoo, "start a paaper i' thee awn native tongue, an' call it t'Yorshar Comet. Ah'll be bun for't it'll pay as weel as Iver good coon did." Noo, then, as sooin as Ah heeard oor Bet's noations, Ah wur omniust stark mad ta carry 'em oot; for Ah thowt, as shoo did 'at it wod pay capital, an' beside, Ah sud maybe be improovin' staate o' saciaty, an' t' morals o' vicious. Ye doan't need ta think 'at Ah's nowt bud an' ignarant mushrum, for, though Ah say't mysen, Ah can tell ya 'at Dicky Dickeson's as full o' knowlidge as a hegg's full o' mecat. Nut 'at Ah wants ta crack o' mysen, nowt o't soart: it isn't what Ah says an' thinks o' mysen, bud what other foaks says an' thinks o' ma; an' if ye ha' no objections, ye's just read a letter 'at Ah gat fro' Naathan Vickus aboot a year an' a hauf sin', when all that talk wur agate relatin' ta Otley gerrin' franchised. It ran as follers:

"Pig-Colt Farm, October, 1842.

"DEAR DICKY,

"Ah mun confess 'at Ah've heeard some talk aboot oor toon sennin' two Members ta Parliement, an' if Iver it sud come ta pass, thoo ma be suare 'at Naathan Vickus 'll stick ta tha up bill an' doon daale. Ah's noane sa thick, Dicky, bud what Ah knows pretty near what a chap is be't cut on his jib, thoo unnerstands; an', depend on't, lad, that's what Ah judges thee by. Thoo's a man 'at 'll dew honour to't toon wheareiver ta goes, an' if ther's onny feathers for onnybody's cap, it's Dicky Dickeson 'at's boon ta get 'em, or else Ah's a fool o' a judge o' human flesh, that's all. Ah hev varry gurt pleasure 'll offerin' tha my vote, an' oor Toby's 'll't bargain; an' Ah dew promise tha, 'at if Ivery pig, mule an' cauf aboot my farm wur receivable as common sense creatures, thoo sud fin' a supporter i' Ivery one on 'em. Wi' a bucket o' compliments ta the sister Bet an't rest o't breed,

"Ah is, dear Dicky,

"Most respectful thine,

"NATHAN VICKUS."

Ta Mr. Dickeson, Esq.

Noo, then, Ah ax agecan, is ther onny o' ya, dear readers, as wod hev't leasat bit o' doot o' yer minds noo? Is ther, Ah say? Noo: An' fancies Ah can hear some o' ya chucklin', an' sayin', "Hurra for Dicky Dickeson! he flogsa! 'at's goane afore him!" An' let ma tell ya, 'at so Ah means ta dew; an' if onny o' ya is trubbled wi' sects o' ghosts or dull thowts, Ah'll guarantee ta fretten 'em oot o' ya, an' that's what noo soul afore ma's done yet. Bud Ah mun gi' ower writin' tul ya at present, for oor Bet tells ma 'at me porridge has been waitin' this hauf hoor, an', as a matter in coorse, they're stiff wi' stan-nin'. Ah can nobbut beg on ya ta read t'Vorshar Comet Ivery week, an', bedewin' soa, tak' my word for't, ye'll saave monny a pound i' year i' pills, boalsuses, an' all sich belly-muck as the are.

Bet joins wi' ma i' luv ta ya all, (shoo's a decent lass, is Bet!) an' wi' a thousand hoapes 'at ye'll in-courage ma,

Ah is, dear Iverybody,

Yer varry humble sarvant.

Fraud.—Felix Flibberton hed a sad roond wi' his wife this week, caused, as we're told, be Mistress Flibberton bein' guilty on a piece o' roguery, t'like o' which we seldom hear tell on. It's said, when Felix tasted on his teen, t'last Thursday mornin', he fan it oot 'at it worn't ower strong, but, on't contrary, wur considerably weaker ner common. O' this fact comin' ta feet, he called his wife tut scratch, an' axed as lovinly as ha wur able, hoo it happened 'at his teen wur i' that pickle. Noo, Felix an' his wife's coffee an' sich like, wur aulius pre-pared i' separate pots,—Ah meean tea-pots; an', that mornin', Miste'r Flibberton hev'n' ligged ray-ther long i' bed, his wife hed thowt proper ta gulp her brekfast afore he landed doon. T'question wur, hed t'mistress ta'en t'biggest shaare o't tea, as theare wur noane in t'canister then? T'poor woman said, ther wur precious little ta mak' t'brekfast on; bud what ther wur, shoo divided fairly, leavin' her hus-band be far t'bigger hauf. Nut chusin' ta believe all 'at his wife spluttered oot, Felix shooted o' sarvant, whoa deposed 'at when shoo gat up, shoo wur suare 'at theare wur then plenty i't canister ta mak' six rare strong cups. Efter a deaal o' cross-examination between t'mistress an' sarvant, t'former began o' roarin', an' confessed 'at shoo hed defrauded her law-ful partner, devoatin' tul her awn use three, wal tul her husband shoo nobbut left one an' a hauf spoon-ful o' tea. Felix wodn't grant noo pardon then, bud bun her ower ta keep t'peace for three months; an', supposin' 'at shoo brak it agecan, he threat-ened sendin' a brief o't whoale case ta Maister Wilkins, barrister, an' ta tak' sich steps as he mud advise.

A Munificent Gift.—Dr. Swabbs, Physician extra-ordinary ta Iverybody 'at wants poisonin', hes once more come oot o' his shell, an' letten t'world know 'at he's t'xaame Dr. Swabbs still 'at Iver ha wor. O' Tuesday neet, wal t'doctor wur smookin' his pipe, an' swillin' his tummler o' brandy an' watter, a depitation o' maad-sarvants, consistin' o't cooks an' seven or eight hoose an' chaamer-maads, waated on him wi' a Roond Robin, petitionin' for a small do-naation i' order ta buy a mixtur ta poison t'nice wi', as they wur gerrin varry impeded i' ther walks in-tut kitchen an' cupboard; i' fact, as't trustwathy cook said, one on 'em hed t'bare-facedness ta come an' wag his tail i' her chooolate, and then as bare-facedly maade his escape, wi'oot stoppin' ta be wallopped for't. T'doctor wur soa moved be thease argements, 'at he threw doon his pipe, brekk'n' on't, as t'house-maid told ma, thrust his hand intul his pocket, an' drew sixpence. What a blessin' wud it be if men generally wud nobbut foller Dr. Swabbs's example!

A Literary Society.—A Literary Society hez been formed i' Otley be some perseverin' an' common-sense young men, 'at's ov apinion 'at it's nowt bud reight 'at they sud hev as much larnin' as tha can afford ta pay for. A committee's been maade, consistin' o' seven o't wisest o't these conspirators tut owerthrow o' ignorance, an' rules drawn up an' printed i' a hexcellen't style, varry creditable both tut author an' tut printer thereon. Ah's suare, we've just seen a catalogue o't books they've already gotten, an' as it couldn't miss but specie volums i' ther faavour, we beg ta subjoin t'naames on a to-three o't principal works:—Jack t'Giant-Killer, Tom Thumb, Cock Robin, Mother Hubbard, Jumpin' Joan, Puss i' Boots, Tom t'Piper's Son, an' a splendid haup'n'y edition o' Whittin'ton an' his Cat. This is a grand opportunity for lovers o' soond inathematical, an' other literary pursuits, ta come forrard, an' support an' sustaan a novelty fro' which tha ma gather all t'information ther minds is on t'lukc oot for.

(5) Deborah Duckiton's Advice Corner.

If ya tuke notice, ye would see, 'at t'latter end o' March, i' t' first quarter, t'moon wur lead ov her back, a suare sign o' stormy weather. Ye'll all know, 'at there's been part frost an' snow sin'; an', if my judgement isn't awfully wrong, we's ha' some more. Weel, noo, i' frosty weather, ye're aware, it's rayther daangerous walkin', becos o't varry gurt slapeness o't roads an' flegs; Ah's quite positive on't, for even i' my time Ah've seen more ner one long-legged coavey browt ov a level w't' grund, an' Ah've seen monny a stoot an' respectable woman, tew. Let me prescribe a remedy, then, for all sich misfortuns. Shadrach Scheddul,—a celebrated horse-shoer i' oor toon, proposed ta sharpen barns for three-haupence a head; lads an' lasses, fro' ten ta sixteen year o' sage, thruppance; an' all aboon that owidness, whether tha've big feet, little feet, or noa feet at all, fowerpence.

N.B. Ivery allooance 'll be maade for wooden legs; an' o't them 'at honestly doesn't wish ta be blessed w't' last-naamed articles o' wear, it's moast respectfully requested 'at they'll avaal thersens o't sharpenin' invention. Shadrach Scheddul allows five per cent. off for ready brass, or six months' credit;—author 'll dew.

Ah advise all landies 'at doesn't wish ta hev ther husbands' stockins cotrageously mucky on a washin'-day, nut ta allow 'em t'privilege o' spoartin' knee-breeches, them hevin' been proved, be varry clever philosophers, ta be t'leadin' cause thereoof, an' t' principal reason why t'leg o't stockin' doesn't last as long as t'foot.

(6) Finita ta Dicky Dickeson.

O' Friday, Dicky Dickeson wur visited i' his study be Marquis o' Crabbum, an', efter a deal o' enquiries about t'weather, an' monny remarks consarnin' this thing an' that, t'latter proceeded ta explain what ha'd come for, soapin' an' emilin' tut larned editor, as it's generally known all these top-markers dew—when tha've owt ta get oot on him. It appears 'at t'alm o't Marquis wur ta induce Mr. Dickeson, as a capitalist o' some note, ta join w't' him i' buyin' in all t'paaper shaavins 'at tha can lig ther hans on, soe as ta hev all t'trade ta thersens.

Mr. Dickeson agreed, an' t'fore-lectin' an' shaavin'-decalm' world is lukin' w't' much terror an' int'rest tut result.

Immediately efter t'Marquis o' Crabbum hed made his exit, a gentle rap wur heard at t'door o't study, an' when Mr. Dickeson bad 'em walk forrard, in popped a bonny, blue-ed, Grecian-nosed, white-toothed lass o' eighteen, an' be't way i' which t'editor smacked her roasy cheeks w't' his lips, here's na doot bud it wur Nanny Tract. Shoo'd browt two coat-caakes, 'at shoo'd newly baked, ye know. Mr. Dickeson set tul ta elt 'em, an' Nanny set tul ta watch him; an' when t'first hed finished his performance on't oost-caakes, here's na need ta say 'at he began o' squeasin' t' latter; ay, an' ye ma say what ya've a mind about t'modesty o't ladies, bud Nanny squeased him as weel, an' wor ther owt wrong in't, think ya? Shallywally! Bud, hoolver, t'editor hedn't been long at this gam', afore ha heerd another noise,—a shufflin', slinkin' noise, Ah mean, an' nut a reg'lar rap,—ootside o't door; soe, takkin' his shoes off, he crept nicely tut spot, an', be gow! if ha didn't fin' t'printer's divil tissenin' there, here's be nowt for tellin' ya on't. Mr. Dickeson, ommust choaked w't' madness at this turn-up, (for wheare's ther onnybody 'at likes ta hev ther love-dewins heard an' seen i) shoved him intut middle on his study; an' commandin' Nanny ta hod him a minute, (which saame shoo did ta perfection,) he went tut other end o't place, an' puttin' on a middlin'-sized clog, take a run pause at t'posteriors o't impudent printer's divil, an' thereby makk'n' him along "God saave t'Queen" i' sich prime style, 'at delicate Nanny wur ta'en w't' afit o' faantin'. T' music hevin' ceased as sooln as t'performer wur turned oot, Nanny bethowt heren ta come round, bud, shaameful ta say, her an' Dicky didn't part wal fower t' afternool, at which time t'lass wur wanted up at hoame ta darn stockins an' crimp frills.

ABORMENT. An abortion. An unusual form of the word found in Topsell's History of Four-Footed Beasts, 1607, p. 21. Aborsment occurs in Higgs' Nomenclator, p. 17; and aburt in Florio, ed. 1611, p. 2.

ABORTYVE. An abortion. It is also an adjective, as in Rich's Honestie of this Age, p. 6.

The childre that are abortyves,
Tho are that ben not born in lyes,
Shul rise in thrifty year of elde.

Curser Mundi, MS. Cantab. f. 136.

ABOTE. (1) Beaten down.

Of whiche sight glad, God it wot,
She was abashid and abote.

A-BOUET. This word, which occurs in Mr. Wright's glossary to the Deposition of Richard II., is perhaps a misprint for a bonet, a kind of sail.

ABOUGHT. Bought. Sometimes, atoned for, from abiggen; and it is occasionally the orthography of about. Jennings gives the Somersetshire proverb (Dialects, p. 80),

Vur vaught,
And dear abought.

See Gy of Warwike, pp. 72, 155, 355; Chaucer, Cant. T. 2305; Lybeaus Disconus, 1979; Kyng Alisaunder, 898; Sir Cleges, 43; Thynne's Debate between Pride and Lowlines, p. 62; Wright's Monastic Letters, p. 31; Hawkins' Engl. Drama, i. 13. The proverb given above seems to be derived from an old one, "Dear bought and farr fett, are dainties for ladies," which Howell gives in his collection, p. 8.

ABOUGHWED. Bowed; obeyed. See a reading in the College of Arms MS. of Robert of Gloucester, in Hearne's edition, p. 106.

ABOUT. Circularly; in a circle. See Macheth, i. 3. It is singularly used in the phrase, "about, my brains," signifying, "brains, go to work," as in Hamlet, ii. 2. In the eastern counties it is current in the sense of near, as, "this horse is worth nothing about forty pounds."

ABOUTEN. About. According to Cooper's Sussex Glossary, p. 12, it is still in use in East Sussex.

And in this wise these lordes all and some Ben on the Sunday to the eltee came

See Webster's Works, i. 314. Above, in common speech, is equivalent to more than. Mr. Bauester sayth that he healed 800 in one yer of an ague, by hanging Abracadabra about ther necks, and wold stanch blood, or heal the toothake, although the parties wer 10 myle of.
MS. Addit. 5008.

- ABRADE. To rub, or scrape off. See Richardson in v. The word is still in use as a sea term.
- ABRAHAM-COLOURED. See Abram-coloured. Cf. Hawkins' Eng. Dram. ii. 276; Blurt Master Constable, 1602.
- ABRAHAM-CUPID. The expression occurs in Romeo and Juliet, ii. 1, and is conjectured by Upton to be a mistake for Adam Cupid, and to allude to Adam Bell, the celebrated archer. See his observations on Shakespeare, ed. 1748, p. 243. The conjecture is very plausible, as

- proper names are frequently abbreviated in early MSS., and it suits the sense and metre.
- ABRAHAM-MEN. According to the Fraternity of Vacabondes, 1575, "an Abraham-man is he that walketh bare-armed, and bare-legged, and fayneth hymselfe mad, and caryeth a packe of wool, or a stycke with baken on it, or such lyke toy, and nameth himselfe poore Tom." They are alluded to by Shakespeare under the name of Bedlam Beggars, and their still more usual appellation was Toms of Bedlam, q. v. According to Grose, to "sham Abram" is to pretend sickness, which Nares thinks may have some connexion with the other term. See also Aubrey's Nat. Hist. Wilts. MS. p. 259; Harrison's Description of England, p. 184.
- ABRAHAM'S-BALM. A kind of willow. According to Bullokar, English Expositor, 1641, it was used as a charm to preserve chastity.
- ABRAID. To rise on the stomach with a degree of nausea; applied to articles of diet, which prove disagreeable to the taste or difficult of digestion. North. This may be the meaning in Troilus and Cresside, i. 725.
Instead of nourishing, it stimulates, abrades, and carries away a part of the solids.
Collins' Miscellanies, 1762, p. 70.
- ABRAIDE. (1) To awake; to start. Palsgrave has "I abrayde, I inforce me to do a thyngue." f. 136.
And if that he out of his slepe abraide
He mighte don us bathe a vilanie.
Chaucer, Cant. T. 4188.
- (2) Explained abroad by Percy. See Reliques, p. 44. It more likely ought to be "a braide," a start. See Ritson's Anc. Pop. Poet. p. 19.
- (3) As a slight variation of our first meaning, it may be mentioned that the word is particularly applied to the action of drawing a sword from a scabbard.
- ABRAM. A cant term, according to Coles applied to a naked or very poor man. Cf. Middleton's Works, iii. 32.
- ABRAM-COLOURED. Nares considers this expression may be a corruption of auburn, and is in some measure confirmed by a passage in Coriolanus, ii. 3: "Our heads are some brown, some black, some abram, some bald, but that our wits are so diversly coloured." The folio of 1685 alters abram to auburn. See Middleton's Works, i. 259; Toone, in v.
- ABRASE. Smooth.
The fourth, in white, is Aphelcla, a nymph as pure and simple as the soul, or as an abras table, and is therefore called Simplicity.

ACKER. (1) A ripple on the surface of the water. So explained in the Craven dialect, but Huloet, in his Alphabetum, 1552, has "aker of the sea, whiche preventeth the flowde or flowynge, impetus maris," a more precise definition, preventeth being of course used in the sense of precedeth. In the Prompt. Parv. p. 8, akyr occurs with the same Latin than Huloet gives. See Eager, and Higre, ramifications of the same term, which appear to be applied to commotions of more violence than the ge-nerality of Huloet's explanations necessarily implies. Mr. Way has a good note on this word in the Prompt. Parv. p. 8, and makes
xxiii. f. 49:

Wel know they the reume yf it a-ryse,
An aker is it clept, I understonde, [wyttstonde.
Whos myght there may no shipe or wynd
This reume in threelan of propre kynde,
Wytoute wynde hathe his commotoun;
The marynest therof may not be blynde,
But when and where in every reploun
It regnethe, he mooste have luspactoun,
For in vlage it may bothe haste and tary,
And unaxed thereof, al myschary.

This extract scarcely bears out Mr. Way's opinion as to the extended meaning of the word aker. The third line probably refers to the reume, or tide, and merely means to express the great and then necessary importance of the tide to navigation, not any particular commotion or current implied in aker. Jamieson has aker, "the motion, break, or movement made by a fish in the water, when swimming fast," which is similar to the meaning of the word in Craven. Lily mentions the agar, but this seems to be the higre, not in the sense of a tide, but a sea-monster.
See Nares, in v. Ager. But, after all, it may mean the double tide, called by Dryden the eagre. The word acker is also used as a verb in the north, to curl, as the water does with wind. See Carlyle's Hero Worship, p. 30, who says the word is still applied, on the river

Trent, to a kind of eddying twirl when the river is flooded, which is often extremely dangerous to the barge-men.

tallie quality, and difficult to work.

(2) In the following quotation, which is put into

ACTRESSES. In explanation of numerous passages in our old plays, it may be well to observe that actresses were not generally introduced into English theatres till after the Restoration. In Shakespeare's time the female characters were personated by boys. There is a curious letter on this subject in MS. Tanner 77. It would appear from the following anecdote, written in a copy of the Memoirs of the Count de Grammont, that this practice was continued to a later period:

It is said the fleet which went for the queen [of Charles II.] stayed six weeks at Lisbon, without any reason given. Some suppose a change in the queen's person was the cause; to which William Davenant alluded when the king, one night at the play, was impatient to have the play begin,—"Sire," said Davenant, "they are sharing the Queen!"

It seems to be merely a corruption of the very common old method of expressing repentance for any hasty action, had I wist, had I known the consequences. The following extracts give forms of the phrase very close to the provincial term.

This dreddful ded I drawe me tylle,
And alle ys tornyd to adwyest.

ADMIRAL. This word, which the reader will find under other forms, did not always imply its present acceptation, but a Saracen commander, sometimes a king. See his Glossary, 1816, in v. Marinarius; and Admyrall; Richard Coeur de Lion, 5042; Maundeville's Travels, p. 38. Robert of Gloucester has the form amrayl. See Hearne's Gloss. in v. AGATE. (1) A-doing; a-going. To "get agate" is to make a beginning of any work or thing; to "be agate" is to be on the road, on the way, approaching towards the end. See Hunter's Hallamshire Glossary, in v. Cotgrave has the expressions "to set the bells a-gate" and "to set a wheelbarrow a-gate." See his Dict. in v. Brinbaler, Brouëter, and the old play called Lingua, iii. 6.

(2) Used metaphorically for a very diminutive person, in allusion to the small figures cut in agate for rings. See Nares, in v.

AGATE-WARDS. To go agate-wards with any one, is to accompany him part of his way home, and was formerly the last office of hospitality towards a guest, frequently necessary even now for guidance and protection in some parts of the country. In Lincolnshire it is pronounced agatehouse, and in the North generally agaterds.

AGATHA. In a little tract by Bishop Pilkington called "The Burnynge of Paulus Church," 8vo. Lond. 1563, sig. G. i, "St. Agatha's Letters" are mentioned as a charm for houses on fire. Cf. Bacon's Works, 1843, p. 139.

AGE. To advance in years. "My daam agen fast," i. e. she looks older in a short space of time. It is sometimes used in Yorkshire in the sense of affecting with concern and amazement, because those passions, when violent and long indulged, are supposed to bring on gray hairs and premature old age. The verb agyn occurs in Prompt. Parv. p. 8, and Palsgrave has, "I age or waxe olde."

merly used in dress, and which was often cut into the shape of little images. A little plate of any metal was called an aglet. Cf. Coventry Mysteries, p. 211; Spanish Tragedy, iv. 4;
Cunningham's Revels Accounts, p. 42; Baret's Alvearie, in v. Mr. Way tells us the word properly denotes the tag, but is often used to signify the lace to which it was attached. See

AGNES-DAY. On the eve of St. Agnes many divinations were practised by maids to discover their future husbands. Aubrey, p. 136, directs that "on St. Agnes's night take a row of pins, and pull out every one, one after another, saying a paternoster, sticking a pin in your sleeve, and you will dream of him or her you shall marry."

And on sweet St. Anna's night,
Feed them with a promised sight;
Some of husbands, some of lovers,
Which an empty dream discovers.

Ben Jonson's Satyr, 1603.

Brand, who gives these lines without a reference, reads "St. Agnes" in the first line, which is, I believe, Aubrey's emendation. Annes, or Agnes, was a virgin who refused the addresses of the son of the prefect of Rome, as she was, she said, espoused to Christ. See Becon's Works, p. 139; Keightley's Fairy Mythology, ii. 143.

work is erroneously paged, which I mention in case any one compares the original.

And because the secret and privy boosome vices of nature are most offensive, and though least scene, yet most undermining enemies, you must redouble your endeavor, not with a wand to alapat and strike

- (3) The meaning of the words beer and ale are the reverse in different counties. Sir R. Baker's verses on hops and beer are clearly erroneous, ale and beer having been known in England at a very early period, although hops were a later introduction. See Warner's Antiq. Culiv. p. 27. Sir Thomas, L. 13801, swears "on ale and bread," though this oath may be intended in ridicule. Ale was formerly made of wheat, barley, and honey. See Index to Madox's Exchequer, in v.

See Tarlton's Newes out of Purgatorie, p. 56.

Grose gives ale-post as a term for a maypole.

See his Class. Diet. Vulg. Song. in v. and supra.

Palsgrave, f. 17, translates it by "le may d'une

taverne." From Dekker's Wonderful Yeaere,

1603, quoted by Brand, it appears that a bush was frequently placed at the top of the ale-stake. See Bush. Hence may be explained the lines of Chaucer:

A garland had he sette upon his hede,

As gret as it werin for an ale-stake.

Urry's ed. p. 6.

Which have been erroneously interpreted in Warton's Hist. Engl. Poet. i. 56. But the bush was afterwards less naturally applied, for Kennett tells us "the coronated frame of wood hung out as a sign at taverns is called a bush." See his Glossary, 1816, p. 35. Cf. Hawkins' Engl. Dram. i. 109; Chaucer, Cant. T. 12255; Reliq. Antiq. i. 14; Hampson's Calend. i. 281; Skelton's Works, i. 320.

ALL-IN-THE-WELL. A juvenile game in Newcastle and the neighbourhood. A circle is made about eight inches in diameter, termed the well, in the centre of which is placed a wooden peg, four inches long, with a button balanced on the top. Those desirous of playing give buttons, marbles, or anything else, according to agreement, for the privilege of throwing a short stick, with which they are furnished, at the peg. Should the button fly out of the ring, the player is entitled to double the stipulated value of what he gives for the stick. The game is also practised at the Newcastle races, and other places of amusement in the north, with three pegs, which are put into three circular holes, made in the ground, about two feet apart, and forming a triangle. In this case each hole contains a peg, about nine inches long, upon which are deposited either a small knife or some copper. The person playing gives so much for each stick, and gets all the articles that are thrown off so as to fall on the outside of the holes.

The earliest instance I have met with is in the romance of Perumbras, below quoted. Other examples are given in Boswell's Malone, viii. 82; and Nares, in v. Loves.

And saide to him she moste go

To visiten the prisoneris that daye,

And said, sir, for alle loves,

Lete me thy prisoneris seen;

I wole the gifte both golde and gloves,

And counsaill shalle it bene. Middlehill MS.

Romeus and Juliet, 1569.

ALL-TO-NOUGHT. Completely. Var. dial.

See Douce's Illustrations, i. 428; Malone's Shakespeare, ed. 1821, viii. 91.

AMAIN. All at once. A sea term. The term is also used in boarding; and to strike amain, is to let the top-sails fall at their full run, not gently. Waring amain, is waving a sword for a signal to other ships to strike their top-sails. See the Sea Dictionary, 12mo. Lond. 1708, in v.

an old glossary in MS. Rawl. Poet. 108, it is explained by "circumstance." See the Brit.

meaning to travel round, in the Morte d'Ar-
thur, i. 135. (Lat.)

AMBASSADE. An embassy. (A.-N.)

Absute him there, th'ambassade imperyall
Were fayre brought unto his royal dignité.

Hardyng's Chronicle, p. 138.

AMBASSADOR. A game played by sailors to duck some inexperienced fellow or landsman, thus described by Grose. A large tub is filled with water, and two stools placed on each side of it. Over the whole is thrown a tarpaulin, or old sail, which is kept tight by two persons seated on the stools, who are to represent the king and queen of a foreign country. The person intended to be ducked plays the ambassador, and after repeating a ridiculous speech dictated to him, is led in great form up to the throne, and seated between the king and queen, who rise suddenly as soon as he is seated, and the unfortunate ambassador is of course deluged in the tub.

AMBASSAGE. An embassy. Shak.

AMBASSATE. An embassy. See Hardyng's
Chronicle, ff. 74, 95, 186, who sometimes spells it ambassiate. In MS. Ashmole 59, f.
45, is "a compleynt made by Lydegate for the departing of Thomas Chaucier into Fraunce by hes servauntz upone the kynges ambassate."

in the dice; and hence often used figuratively for bad luck. See Chaucer, Cant. T. 4544; Harrowing of Hell, p. 21; All's Well that ends Well, ii. 3. Howell, p. 19, tells us that when this throw was made, the dicers in London would say "ambling annes and trotting Joan."

This is also the reading of one MS. in Rob.
Glouc. p. 51.

This were a hevy case,
A chaunce of ambeases,
To se youe broughte so base,
To plays without a place.

Skelton's Works, ii. 438.

echo maye; and Mercy hir syster salle be ambynowre, that gyffes to alle, and noghte kane kepe to herselfe.

MS. Lincoln A. 1. 17, f. 273.

AME. (1) To guess; to think; to tell. From the German ahmen, according to Qu. Rev. iv. 371;
but it certainly, in middle English, is merely another form of aim, q.v. In Palsgrave we have

"I ayme, I mente or gesse to hyt a thyng." The meaning is clearly ascertained from Prompt. Parv. p. 190, "geasyne, or amyne, estimo, arbitror, opinor." Cf. Rom. and Jul. i. 1.

Of men of armes bold the nambre thei ame,
A thousand and tuo hundred told of Cristen men bi name. Peter Langtoft, p. 228.

(3) For a third sense, see Warner's Antiq. Culin. p. 14. A dish is there called "douce ame."

AMEAUNT. Ellis and Utterson propose adaman as the meaning of this word. The Cambridge MS. reads, "Thys swyrde ys gode and aveaunt." (A.-N.)

Therefore my swaerde he shall have,

My good swerde of ameaunt,

For therwith I slowe a gyaunt. Syr Degort, 105.

Son, quod he, I am thi fadir.

Gesta Romanorum, p. 177.

AMEL-CORN. A kind of corn, said by Markham to be "of a middle size betwixt wheat and barlie, unlike altogether unto winter wheat whereof we last spake, but of a sort and facultie like unto spelt, whereof we will speake next in order." See Markham's Country Farme, 1616, p. 551; Cotgrave, in v. Scourgeon; Florio, in v. Oriza. It appears from Markham that scourgeon is scarcely synonymous with amel-corn, and therefore Cotgrave's account of it is not quite applicable. It seems to be the Teut. Amelkoren, explained by Kilian far candidum, and the corn of which amydon is made. Gerard calls it the starch-corn, a species of spelt.

AMELL. (1) Enamel. It is also used as a verb by Chaucer, Palsgrave, and others. See Amiled; Beaumont and Fletcher, Introd. p. lix; Cotgrave and Hollyband, in v. Email; Prompt. Parv. p. 261; Twine, ap. Collier's Shak. Lib. p. 206. Amall is a similar form, q. v. See an example in v. Amelyd.

(2) Between. Northumb. It seems to be the Icelandic d milli. See Qu. Rev. lv. 363, where it is stated not to be used in Scotland. It is inserted in the glossary to the Towneley Mysteries, without a reference, and explained "among."

AMELYD. Enamelled.

The frontys therwith amelyd all
With all maner dyverse amell.

MS. Ashmole 61, f. 154.

Bochas, b. ii. c. 31.

AMEOS. The herb bishop's-weed. See Florio, in v. Ammi.

AMERAL. An admiral, q. v. The word is very changeable in its orthography. In the Prompt. Parv. p. 11, it occurs in the modern sense of admiral. The word ameralité in the following passage seems to mean the sovereignty of the sea.

Cherish marchandise and kepe the ameralité,
That we be maisters of the narrow see.

MS. Soc. Antiq. 101, f. 50.

AMERAWD. An emerald.

Lat mercy be taxour. Piers Ploughman, p. 119.

AMERE. Bitterly. So explained by Weber in the following passage, where the Lincoln's Inn MS. reads, "and gan him beore." Stevenson considers it a noun, mischiefe, damage, a more likely interpretation. (A.-N.)

Daniadas, Dames brother,

He hadde y-slawe on and othir.

Tauryn and Hardas he slowe with spere.

With sword ryden he dud amere!

In this strong fyghting eas,

He mette with Dalmasdas.

Kyng Alisaunder, 4427.

AMERELLE. The translation of umbraculum in the Canterbury MS. of the Medulla. See the Prompt. Parv. p. 301. The corresponding term in MS. Harl. 2270 is "an umbrelle."

AMERRE. To mar; to spoil; to destroy. See the Sevn Sages, 2266, wrongly glossed by Weber. (A.-S.)

He ran with a drawe swerde

AMET. An ant. (A.-S.)

Homage of the Rose, 3026.

AMICE. The amice or amite is the first of the sacerdotal vestments. It is, says Mr. Way, a piece of fine linen, of an oblong square form, which was formerly worn on the head until the priest arrived before the altar, and then thrown back upon the shoulders. See Prompt. Parv. p. 11; Nomenclator, p. 159; Dugdale's Monast. iii. 295. The following quotation may also be found in an early printed fragment in Mr. Maitland's account of the Lambeth Library, p. 266. See Ammis.

Upon his heed the amite first he leith,

Which is a thing, a token and figure

Outwardly shewing and grounded in the felth;

The large awbe, by record of scripture,

Ye tightwisnesse perpetually to endure:

The longe girdyl, clenness and chastité;

Bounde on the arme, the fanoune doth assure

All soburnesse knytte with humillité.

Lydgate, MS. Hatton 73, f. 3.

MS. Cantab. Ff. i. 6, f. 6

AMMAT. A luncheon. West.

AMMIS. The canonical vestment, lined with fur, that served to cover the head and shoulders. Grey fur was generally used. The word is sometimes spelt amice, amyse, ammys, ammas, &c. In French the amiet and amuce, and in Latin the amictus and almucium, correspond to the amice and ammin, as we have spelt them; but it is a grave error to confound the two, as Mr. Dyce does in his edition of Skelton, ii. 134. See also the quotations in Richardson, where, however, the terms are not distinguished; and Prompt. Parv. p. 11, where the distinction between the two is clearly seen; Palsgrave, f. 17; Lockhart's Life of Scott, i. 309. In the Prompt. Parv. we also have "amuce of an hanc, almucium, habetur in horologio divine sapientie."

And hym moost lowly pray,
In his mynde to comprise
These wordes his grace dyd saye
Of an amnis gray, Skelton's Works, ii. 84.

AMNANT. Pleasantly (?). See Syr Gawayne, p. 31. Perhaps it should be amiant.

AMNER. An almoner. Not an unusual form of the word. See Rutland Papers, p. 59; Wright's Monastic Letters, p. 49; Prompt. Parv. pp. 18, 19; Cotgrave, in v. Amosnier.

AMONESTE. To admonish; to advise. (A.-N.) Cf. Apology for the Lollards, p. 93; Wright's Christmas Carols, p. 31; Chaucer, ed. Urry, p. 201; Melibeus, p. 110.

AMONGE. Amidst; at intervals. Cf. Ellis's Met. Rom. ii. 397; Ritson's Anc. Pop. Poet. p. 44. The phrase ever among, in Rom. of the Rose, 3771, and 2 Henry IV. v. 3, means ever from time to time, ever at intervals.

AMORETTE. A love affair. (A.-N.) Tyrwhitt says "an amorous woman" in the second of these instances, where it may be merely a diminutive, as in Florio, in v. Amorino. Jamieson explains it, love-knots, garlands.

For not t-cladde in silke was he,
But all in flouris and flourettes,
I-paintid all with amorettes.

Rom. of the Rose, 803.

For all so well woll love be sette,

Undir raggs as riche roichette,

And eke as well by amorettes

In mourning blacke, as bright burnettes.

Ibid. 4755.

AMORILY. Perhaps, says Tyrwhitt, put by mistake for merily. The old glossaries explain it "amorously."

And to the lectorn amorily he sprang,

Hail, quod he, O thou freshe reison of May.

A-MORTHERED. Murdered. See the Herald's College MS. of Robert of Gloucester, quoted in Hearne's edition, p. 144.

AMORTISEN. To amortize; to give property in mortmain. (A.-N.) The word amortised occurs in the Persones Tale, p. 22, and is explained killed in the glossaries. It may possibly bear a figurative expression.

Let mellerys and bakerys gadre hem a gilde,

And alle of assent make a fraternite,

Undir the pillory a lill chapelle bylde,

The place amorteyse, and purchase libertie

Lydgate's Minor Poems, p. 207.

AMORYG. Explained by Hearne "to-morrow," Rob. Glouc. p. 234; but the Herald's College MS. reads "among," which clearly seems to be the right reading.

AMOUNTE. Smeared? Mr. Wright thinks it may be an error of the scribe for amointe.

And I will goe gather slyche,
The shippe for to caulke and pyche:

Amounte yt muste be with stiche,

AMOWRE. Love. See Flor. and Blanch. 524; Hall, Edward IV. f. 11; Cov. Myst. p. 50. The term amours, intrigues, was introduced into England in the seventeenth century, according to Skinner.

AMPER. A sort of inflamed swelling. East.

"Ampered, corrupted, as ampred chees in Kent; an amper or amper in Essex, is a rising scab or sore, also a vein swelled with corrupted blood." Kennett, MS. Lansd. 1033. Skinner also appropriates it to Essex, but Grose to Kent, who explains it, a "fault, a defect, a flaw;" and Ray gives it as a Sussex word, "a fault or flaw in linnen, or woollen cloth." A person covered with pimples is said in Somersetshire to be ampery, while the same word is used in the Eastern counties in the sense of weak, or unhealthy. Ampered or ampery is now applied to cheese beginning to decay, especially in Sussex; and is sometimes used when speaking of decayed teeth. An ampre-ang is said in the glossaries to be a decayed tooth in East Sussex and Kent.

AMPERESSE. An empress.

The nexte yer thereafter, the emperesse Mold
Wende out of this live, as the boe ath i-told.

Rob. Glouc. p. 474.

AMPERSAND. The character &, representing the conjunction and. It is a corruption of and per se, and. The expression is, or rather was, common in our nursery books. In Hampshire it is pronounced amperzed, and very often amperse-and. An early instance of its use is quoted in Strutt's Sports and Pastimes, p. 399.

AMPHIBOLOGICAL. Ambiguous. This word occurs in Greene's Planetomachia, 1588. Rider, 1640, has "amphibologic," and so has Chaucer, Troilus and Creside, iv. 1406.

AMPLE. (1) To go. Apparently a corruption of amble. See Watson's Halifax vocab. in v. North.

Paul fell down astounded, and only not dead,
For Death was not quite within call:
Recovering, he found himself in a warm bed,
And in a warm fever an-all.

Hunter's Hallamsh. Gloss. p. 4.

ANALYNG. Weber thinks this may be a corruption of annihilating, i. e. killing. See Kyng Alisaunder, 2166, "analyng of strange knightes," but we should no doubt read avalynge, descending from or falling off their horses.

ANAMELDE. Enamelled. Cf. Tundale, p. 64; Warton's Hist. Engl. Poet. ii. 42.

They were anamelde with asure,

ANAN. How? What do you say? It is made use of in vulgar discourse by the lower class of persons addressing a superior, when they do not hear or comprehend what is said to them. It is going out of use now. It is also a corruption of anem, immediately.

ANANSY. To advance; to exalt. So Hearne explains it, in Rob. Glouc. p. 199. The Heralds' College MS. reads avansance; and perhaps we should here print it avansy.

ANAPE. Apparently the name of a herb. It is mentioned in an old receipt in a MS. of the 15th century, penes me.

ANAPES. Cloth. It seems to be some fine kind of fustian. See Cotgrave, in v. Velours. It is generally found as an adjunct to fustian, as in Laneham, p. 31; Brit. Bibl. ii. 403. This is of course the proper reading in Middleton's Works, iv. 425, "set a-fire my fustian and apes breeches," which the editor proposes to correct to Naples breeches. To mend the matter, we actually find apes' breeches set down in the index to the notes! Fustian anapes is also mentioned in the Strange Mau telling Fortunes to Englishmen, 1662.

ANARWE. To render timid. The Bodl. MS. reads "an-arewest." Perhaps it means, to narrow, to diminish.

He makith heom way with scharpe launce;
Thy men anarweith thy continuance.

ANATOMY. A skeleton. Lister tells us he was so thin he "was like an anatomy." See his Autobiography, ed. Wright, p. 45.

ANATRINS. If so be. North. In East Sussex the form anaintrins is in use. It seems to be connected with the old word aunter; so that anaintrins would correspond to prudenture. See Rob. Glouc. pp. 206, 311.

ANBERRY. A kind of bloody wart on a horse. See Topsell's Hist. of Four-Footed Beasts, p. 420; Markham's Cavellerie, b. vii. p. 80; Florio, in v. Moro; Dict. Rustic. in v. Anbury. In the East of England, a knob or excrescence on turnips or other roots is called an anberry.

(3) To hold like an anchor. In the East of England, the strong tenacious spreading roots of vigorous plants are said to anchor out.

ANCHORIDGE. A church porch, particularly that belonging to the cathedral church of Durham; perhaps so called in allusion to a ship, of which some parts gave names to the parts of a church. Kennett's MS. Gloss.

ANCHYRCHE. A church. See Hearne's gloss. to Rob. Glouc. and the Chron. p. 232. It should probably be two words.

ANCIENT. A standard-bearer, or ensign-bearer an officer now called an ensign. The word was also used for the flag or ensign of a regiment or of a ship. The old editions of the Merry Wives of Windsor mention on their titles, "the humours of Corporal Nym and Ancient Pistol." See also Collier's Old Ballads, p. 31; Percy's Reliques, pp. 73, 144; Leicester Correspondence, p. 17; Account of the Grocers' Company, p. 330. Kennett, MS. Lansd. 1033, has anahent, the flag in the stern of a ship.

Ellis's Met. Rom. i. 279.

ANCOME. A small ulcerous swelling, formed unexpectedly. Rider translates it marhus adventitius. According to Dict. Rustic. "a swelling or bump that is hard and hot." See Estward Hoe, iii. 1; Qu. Rev. iv. 372. In Scotland, an attack of disease is called an oncome; and in a curious MS. of old receipts in Lincoln Cathedral, f. 300, is one "for onkome one arme," which agrees with what Mr. Garnett says of the form of the word in the place just cited. See Uncome.

ANCONY. A term in the iron works for a bloom, wrought into the figure of a flat iron bar, about three feet in length, with a square rough knob on each end. See Kennett's MS. Gloss. f. 16. In Staffordshire one of these knobs is called an ancony-end, the other a moeket-head.

ANCRES. A female anchorite, or hermit. The term ancre is applied to a nun in Reliq. Antiq. ii. 1; Rob. Glouc. p. 390. Palsgrave, f. 17, has, "Anchre, a religious man; anchren, a religious woman."

Nowe wyll I take the mantell and the ryng,
And become an ancrewe in my lyvyng.

MS. Cott. Voyns. A. iii. f. 13.

ANDIRONS. The ornamental irons on each side of the hearth in old houses, which were accompanied with small rests for the ends of the logs. The latter were sometimes called dogs, but the term andirons frequently included both, as in the proverb recorded by Howell, "Bauds and attorneyes, like andyrone, the one holds the sticks, the other their clients, till they consume." Mr. J. G. Nichols, glossary to the Union Inventories, considers the dogs to be synonymous with the creepers, q. v. but the term was also applied to part of the andirons, and the latter are still called andogs in the Western counties. We find in Ducange, "andena est ferrum, supra quod opponuntur ligna in igne, quod alio nomine dicitur hyperpygium;" and Miege makes the auliron and dog synonymous. The andirons were sometimes made of superior metal, or gilt, and of very large dimensions. See Malone's Shakespeare, xiii. 85; Reliq. Antiq. ii. 84; Halle of John Halle, i. 600; The Alchemist, v. 1.

The Scottish meaning concerning does not appear to be now used in Yorkshire. Anentis occurs in Reliq. Antiq. ii. 47, in the sense of concerning; and in Hardyng's Chronicle, f. 170, in the sense of against. See also Wicliffe's New Test. p. 23; Plumpton Corresp. p. 77.

ANGRY. Painful; inflamed; smarting. Forby says "painfully inflamed," and applies it to kibes, as Florio does, in v. Pedignoni. It is the gloss of the Latin molestus in Reliq. Antiq. i. 8; and it seems to be used in a somewhat similar sense in Julius Cæsar, l. 2. In a collection of old MS. recipes, in Lincoln Cathedral, is one for anger in the liver, f. 305, meaning of course inflammation. See the example quoted under Thomcange; and Piers Ploughman, p. 266.

ANHEIGHE. To hang? (A.-S.)

And told hem this villaine,

And seyd he wold hom anheighe.

Arthur and Merlin, p. 88.

AN-HEIRES. The Host of the Garter, in the Merry Wives of Windsor, ii. 1, addressing Page and Shallow, says, "Will you go, an-heires?" So the folios read, and no sense can be made of the expression as it there stands. A similar passage in the quartos is, "here boys, shall we wag? shall we wag?" but it occurs in another part of the play, although Shallow's answer is the same. Sir T. Hanmer makes German of it, in which he is followed by Mr. Knight. In proposing a bold conjectural emendation, the general style of language employed by the Host must be considered. Thus in act iii. sc. 2, he says "Farewell, my hearts," a method of expression also used by Bottom, "Where are these hearts?" Mida. Night's Dream, iv. 2. See another instance in Clarke's Phrasologia Puerilis, 1655, p. 109. In proposing to read, "Will you go, my hearts?" we approach as near the original as most of the proposed emendations; or, perhaps, as Steevens proposes, "Will you go on, hearts?" Perhaps, however, Mr. Collier has pursued the wisest course in leaving it as it stands in the old copies.

ANHERITED. Inherited?

The cité of Acon, that in this contré is clepid Akra, florished and stode in his vertue, joy, and propreté, and was anherited richely with worshipfull princes and lordes. MS. Harl. 1704.

Brit. Bibl. ii. 441.

ANON. What do you say? Yorksh. See Anan.

It is more usual in the sense of immediately, but is now seldom heard in the southern counties. The phrase "anon, sir," is often found in our old dramatists, put into the mouth of waiters, who now say, "coming, sir." See 1 Henry IV. ii. 4; Douce's Illustrations, i. 427.

ANONEN. See Ritson's Ancient Songs, p. 19, and the observations on this word in Warton's Hist. Engl. Poet. ii. 72. "Anone" occurs in Wright's Political Songs, p. 199, explained by the original scribe "at one time." Mr. Wright translates it "in the first place:"

to be used in the sense of hansel in Decker's Satiro-Mastix, ap. Hawkins, iii. 137. See also a similar orthography in Prompt. Parv. p. 14.
ANSIUM-SCRANCHUM. When a number of persons are assembled at a board where the Plumpton Correspondence, p. 231.

ANSWER. To encounter at a tournament. See the Paston Letters, ii. 4. Shakespeare uses the substantive in the sense of retaliation, requital, in Cymbeline, iv. 4. A very common though peculiar sense of the word has not been noticed by lexicographers. To answer a front door, is to open it when any one knocks. At a farm-house near South Petherton, a maid-servant was recently asked why she did not answer the door. The girl, who had an impediment in her speech, replied, "Why—why—why, if you please, mim, I—I—I did'n hear'n speak!"

ANT. (1) Am not. Devon.

(3) "In an ant's foot," in a short time. A Warwickshire phrase.

ANTEM. (1) A church. This cant word is given in the Brit. Bibl. ii. 521, more generally spelt antem. We have also an antem-morte, "a wyfe married at the church, and they be as chaste as a cow." See the same work, ii. 290, 520; and Harrison's Description of England, p. 184.

ANTH. And the. North.

ANTHONY-NUT. The bladder-nut; the staphyladendron. See Florio, in v. Staphylodéndro; Cotgrave, in v. Bagenaudes.

ANTHONY-PIG. The favourite or smallest pig of the litter. A Kentish expression, according to Grose. "To follow like a tantony pig," i. e. to follow close at one's heels. Some derive this saying from a privilege enjoyed by the friars of certain convents in England and France, sons of St. Anthony, whose swine were permitted to feed in the streets. These swine would follow any one having greens or other provisions, till they obtained some of them; and it was in those days considered an act of charity and religion to feed them. St. Anthony was invoked for the pig. See Becon's Works, p. 138; and a quotation from Horman in Prompt. Parv. p. 29.

ANTHONY'S-FIRE. A kind of erysipelas. Far. dial. Higgins says, "A swelling full of heate and rednes, with paine round about a sore or wound, commonly called S. Antonies fier." See the Nomenclator, 1585, p. 439.

ANTHROPOMANCY. Divination by the entrails of men. This species of divination is alluded to in Holiday's Tecnogamia, 4to. Loud. 1618.

The duke of Brabant welcome the archbishop
Of Mentis with rare conceit, even on a sudden
Perform'd by knights and ladies of his court,
In nature of an antick. Ford's Works, 1. 440.

ANTICKS. This word occurs in a variety of senses. Shakespeare has the verb to antick, to make anticks, and antickly, in an antick manner. See Anthony and Cleopatra, ii. 7; Much Ado about Nothing, v. 1. Actors are frequently termed anticks, as in the Nomenclator, p. 530. The ancient sculpture and paintings in parish churches fall under the same denomination, and it is even applied to the sculptured figures in pavements.

And cast to make a chariot for the kIng,
Painted with antickes and ridiculous toys,
In which they meane to Paris him to bring.
To make sport to their madames and their boyes.

Drayton's Poems, p. 43.

From hence commeth that noble name or composition antidotary, called Theriaca, that is, triacle.

Topail's History of Serpents, p. 280.

ANTIENS. Ancestors. Carr gives this word as still used in Craven, and it occurs apparently in the same sense in the Pickwick Papers, p. 205.

ANTIMASQUE. Something directly opposed to the principal masque, a light and ridiculous interlude, dividing the parts of the more serious masque. It admitted of the wildest extravagances, and actors from the theatres were generally engaged to perform in it. See Beaumont and Fletcher, ii. 459; Ben Jonson, ed. Gifford, vii. 251; Nares, in v., and an account of Mr. Moore's revels at Oxford in 1636, in MS. Ashmole 47.

ANTINOMIES. Rules or laws, in opposition to some others deemed false, and having no authority. See an example of this word in Taylor's Great Exemplar, p. 50.

ANTIOCHE. A kind of wine, perhaps imported or introduced from that country. A drink for wounded persons, called "water of Antioche," is described at length in MS. Jamys, f. 40. See also some verses on lechecrafts in MS. Harl. 1600.

Antioche and bastarde, Pymment also and garnarde.

Squyr of Love Degred, 787.

ANTIPHONER. This term is frequently met with in the inventories of church goods and ornaments in old times. It was a kind of psalm-book, containing the usual church music, with the notes marked, as we still see them in old mass books; and so called from the alternate repetitions and responses. See the Archæologia, xxi. 275.

ANVERDRE. To overthrow. Somerset. Perhaps a mistake for averdre. I insert it on Mr. Holloway's authority.

ANVIED. Explained by Weber enried, enraged, in the following passage; but we should certainly read anvied, part. of the verb anuy, q. v. See also Amye, which may perhaps be a similar error.

APE. (1) A fool. To put an ape into a person's hood or cap was an old phrase, signifying to make a fool of him. Sometimes we have the phrase, to put on his head an ape, in the same sense. Apes were formerly carried on the shoulders of fools and simpletons; and Malone says it was formerly a term of endearment. Tyrwhitt considers "win of ape," in Cant. T. 16993, to be the same with vin de singe. See his note, p. 329; Robert of Sicily, p. 58.

A ha, felawes, beth ware of swiche a jape.

And in his wifes eke, by Seint Austin.

MS. Cantab. Fl. ii. 38, f. 241.

(2) Brisk; bold; free. Skinner. In the provinces we have pearl, used in a similar sense. Toone quotes a passage from Peter Langtoft, p. 74, but I doubt its application in this sense, although it may be derived from A.-N. aperte.

APOSTLE-SPOONS. It was anciently the custom for sponsors at christenings to offer gilt spoons as presents to the child, which were called apostle-spoons, because very frequently the figures of the twelve apostles were chased or carved on the tops of the handles. Opulent sponsors gave the whole twelve; those in middling circumstances gave four; while the poorer sort often contented themselves with the gift of one, exhibiting the figure of some saint in honour of whom the child received its name. See Brand's Pop. Antiq. ii. 62. At Cambridge the last person in the tripos is called a spoon, and the twelve last in the poll are designated the twelve Apostles.

Rob. Glouc. p. 963.

APPLE-PEAR. A kind of pear, mentioned in Higin's adaptation of Junius' Nomenclator, p. 99. It seems to be the tankard pear.

APPLE-PIE-ORDER. Anything in very great order. An apple-pie-bed furnishes an article for Grose. It is made somewhat in the fashion of an apple-turnover, the sheets being so doubled as to prevent any one from getting at his length between them; a common trick in schools.

APPLES-OF-LOVE. The fruit of some foreign herb, said to be a stimulus for the tender passion. Skinner says they are fructus solani cujusdam peregrini; that is, the fruit of some foreign species of nightshade.

APPLE-SQUIRE. This word appears to have been used in several senses. An apple-squire was a kept gallant, and also a person who waited on a woman of bad character. In the Belman of London, 1608, we are told the apple-squire was the person "to fetch in the wine." The term was often applied to a pimp. Miegé translates it, un grossier ecuyer de dame. See Middleton's Works, III. 232; Cotgrave, in v. Cueilleur; Florio, in v. Guatáro; Beaumont and Fletcher, II. 332; Hall's Satires, I. 2; Dodsley's Old Plays, XI. 284.

MS. Bodl. 30.

APPLE-STUCKLIN. An apple-turnover. Hants.

In Norfolk it is called an apple-twelin.

APPLE-TERRE. An apple orchard. This word was formerly used in Sussex, but seems to be now obsolete. Huloet, in his Abecedarium, 1552, gives apple-yard in the same sense. In Devonshire, they have a curious custom at Christmas of firing powder at apple trees and singing lays round them to make them more fruitful. Brand mentions other customs of the same kind.

APPLIABLE. Capable of being applied.

And therto many of the contrye of Kent were assentyng, and cam with theyr good wills, as people redy to be appliable to suche seditious commocions.

APPLIMENT. Application. Anc. Dr.

If anye of these wants be in me, I beseeche your lordshipp appoint them to my extreme state, more greivous then disease; more unquiet then pryson; more troublesome to me then a painful deathe.

Harington's Nugæ Antiquæ, l. 48.

APPON. Upon. See Apon. The Thornton MS. constantly uses this orthography, and it occurs in Torrent of Portugal, p. 2.

APPONE. To dispute with. So seems to be the meaning of the word as used by Florio, in v. Apposto, though the Latin appondere means to pawn, to pledge.

APPOSAYLE. Question; enquiry.

When he went out his enemies to assayle,
Made unto her this uncouth apposayle.

APPREHENSION. According to its literal import, means laying hold of, or catching, as we still use it applied to offenders against the law. Thus in Harrison's description of the pearl-muscle, which is said to have been frequently found in the rivers Dee and Don, the manner of apprehension is likewise mentioned. In Beaumont and Fletcher, iii. 171, it seems to be used in the sense of imagination.

APPREHENSIVE. Of quick conception; perceptive.

I fly unseen, as charmers in a mist.

Grateful revenge, whose sharp-sweet rellist fets

My apprehensives soul. The True Triflers, iii. 8.

A Midn. Night's Dream, iii. 1.

APRIL. Ray has the proverb, "April—borrow three days of March, and they are ill." April is pronounced with an emphasis on the last syllable, so as to make a kind of jingling rhyme with ill. See Brand's Pop. Antiq. ii. 25. The wedding-day is sometimes satirically called April-day, in allusion to the common custom of making fools on the 1st of April. In the Merry Wives of Windsor, iii. 2, the Host of the Garter, speaking of Fenton, says, "he smells April and May;" that is, of youth and courtship.

Irish aqua-vitæ was unquebaugh, but brandy was a later introduction, nor has the latter term been found earlier than 1671. According to Nares, it was formerly in use as a general term for ardent spirits, and Ben Jonson terms a seller of drams an "aqua-vitæ man." Aran-web is a cobweb in Northumberland. Aranye is the form of the word in the Prompt. Parv. p. 14. Derham, as quoted by Richardson, uses the word araneous.

In the Morte d'Arthur, ii. 374-5, it seems to be a substantive, in the sense of disorder, tumult; and Mr. Dyce gives quotations from Reynard the Fox, in which it occurs as a verb in a similar signification. In Maundeville's Travels, p. 214, it means to prepare, to arrange.

ARAYNYE. Sand. So it is explained in Prompt. Parv. MS. Harl. 221, f. 5, by the Latin arena. The other copies read aranye, arana, for which this may be an error, but not "evidently," as stated by Mr. Way.

ARAYING. Advancing.

Also, in araying the auncysant nobles of England,

Squire of Lowse Degri, 28.

(2) To make the arber, a phrase in hunting, is to disembowel the animal, which must be done in a neat and cleanly manner. The dogs are then rewarded with such parts of the entrails as their two-legged associates do not think proper to reserve for their own use. See Scott's notes to Tristram, p. 387; Ben Jonson, vi. 270.

alchemist used, among other things,

Cley made with hors and mannes here, and oile

Of tartre, alumi, glas, berme, wart, and argilla.

Tyrbwhitt explains argoule, potter's clay, as the French argille: Palsgrave, f. 18, has, "argile, a kynde of erthe, argille," but Skinner explains it, "alkali seu sal kali." Ben Jonson, Al-chemist, i. 1, mentions, "arsenic, vitriol, sal-tartar, argale, alkali, cinoper," as the stock of an alchemist; and in a MS. of the fifteenth century penes me is a receipt "to make water argoule, that ys, aqua tartary," in which instances it seems to mean the tartar, or lees of wine, as before in argol, q. v. This also is clearly the meaning of argul in a very early receipt in MS. Harl. 2253, printed in the Archæo-logical Journal, i. 65, "tac argul, a thing that deyares deyeth with, ant grint hit smal, ant seththe tac a wollene clout, ant couche thi poudre theron as brod as hit wol." Argul, or argal, is the name of the impure salt deposited from wine; and when purified, is called bitar-trate of potash, or cream of tartar, a material still used in dyeing. Argol is mentioned in a list of chemical metals in Gallathea, 1632.

ARK. (1) A chest. In the North of England, the large chests in farm houses used for keeping meat or flour are so called. They are usually made of oak, and are sometimes elaborately carved. From the name Arkwright, it would seem that the construction of them formerly constituted a separate trade.

ARLES. Money paid to bind a bargain. Dr. Jamieson says, "an earnest, of whatever kind; a pledge of full possession." Kersey gives arles-penny, a North country word for "earnest-money given to servants." It is sometimes the custom to give a trifle to servants when they were hired, as a kind of retainer. See an instance in Dr. Dee's Diary, p. 11. According to Pegge, to arle a bargain is to close it. See also Hunter's Hallamshire Glossary, p. 104; Skinner, part 3, in v.

(3) In a receipt for a dish in Warner's Antiq. Culin. p. 26, it is directed that "cranes and herons shal be armed with lardes of swyne." In this place the word means larded with bacon fat, and roasted birds when larded certainly may be said to be formidably armed.

ARM-GAUNT. Lean; thin; very lean. So the first two folios read, but the correctness of it has been much disputed. Mason suggests termagaunt, a conjecture supported by Toone; but there is no necessity for alteration. Shakespeare uses arm-gaunt, as thin as an arm, in the same way that Chaucer writes arm-gret, q. v.

So he noddid,

And soberly did mount an arm-gaunt steed.

Antony and Cleopatra, I. 5.

ARNUT. The earth-nut, or pig-nut, frequently eaten by boys in the north of England.

AROINT. A word of expulsion, or avoiding. Douce thinks there is no doubt that it signifies, away! run! and that it is of Saxon origin. See his Illustrations, i. 371. It occurs thrice in Shakespeare in this sense, Macbeth, i. 3, and King Lear, iii. 4, applied in each instance to witches. The print published by Hearne, referred to by the commentators, seems scarcely applicable. See Arount. The fourth folio reads aroint, according to Stevens, a reading which may perhaps be confirmed by a passage in Ben Jonson's Masque of Queens:

Sisters, stay, we want our Dame;

Call upon her by her name,

And the charm we use to say,

That she quickly aroint, and come away.

But as the word is spelt aroynt three times in the early editions, we are scarcely justified in proposing an alteration. Ray explains "rynt ye," by your leave, stand handsomely, and gives the Cheshire proverb, "Rynt you, witch, quoth Besse Locket to her mother." This proverbial saying positively connects rynt with aroint, and Wilbraham informs us that "rynt thee" is an expression used by milkmaids to a cow when she has been milked, to bid her to get out of the way, which is more likely to be correct than Ray's explanation. Boucher goes farther, and says, aroint is the word used in that county; but Ray's proverb is sufficient, and of good authority, because he does not appear to have had the Shakespearian word in view. The connexion between aroint and rynd being thus established, it is clear that the compound etymology proposed by Mr. Rodd, in Knight's Shakspeare, is inadmissible. A more plausible one is given in Nares's Glossary, in v. from the Latin averrunco, the participle of which may have been formed into aroint, in the same way that punctum has become point; unctum, joint, &c. See also Collier's Shakspeare, vii. 103, where the same conjecture is revived, and attributed to a more recent writer. The a may have been dropped, and Mr. Wilbraham's conjectural origin from arouma receives some confirmation from a passage quoted in Collier's Hist. Dram. Poet. ii. 289, where the form of that word is aroin; but perhaps we should read arome.

AROMAZ. A spice. "Smirles of aromaz" are mentioned in MS. Cott. Titus D. xviii. f. 142.

The tother to mirre, the thridde to flour,
The ferthe like to aromate.

AROUME. Aside; at a distance. It is translated by remote, deprave, acorum, in Prompt. Parv. p. 14. See Book of Fame, ii. 32; Kyng Alisaunder, 1637; Richard Coeur de Lion, 464; Collier's Hist. Dram. Poet. ii. 289; Digby Mysteries, p. 188. (A.-S.)

ARRAND. An errand. Skinner. The form arrant is still used in the North, and is found in Middleton's Works, v. 5. Howell, in his collection of English Proverbs, p. 2, gives the following: "One of the four and twenty qualities of a knave is to stay long at his arrand."

ARRANT. Malory, in his Morte d'Arthur, i. 199, &c. applies this word to knights, where we say errant. The term is generally applied to any thing or person extremely objectionable and worthless, and was probably derived from the licentious character of wanderers in general.

ARRA-ONE. Ever a one. Wills.

ARRAS. (1) A superior kind of tapestry, so named from Arras, the capital of Artois in the French Netherlands, which was celebrated for its manufacture. In the rooms of old houses hung with arras, there were generally large spaces between the hangings and the walls, and these were frequently made hiding places in the old plays. Falstaff proposes to hide himself behind the arras at Windsor; and Polonius is killed behind the arras in Hamlet, iii. 3. See the Union Inventories, ed. J. G. Nichols, gloss. in v. Aryste. Falstaff, no moderate size, sleeps behind the arras in 1 Henry IV. ii. 4, where Dr. Johnson thinks Shakespeare has outstepped probability, but Malone has distinctly proved the contrary. See his Shakespeare, xvi. 299.

(2) A kind of powder, probably made of the root of the orris. See Gerard, p. 48. "Halfe an ounce of arras" is mentioned by Harrison, Descr. of England, p. 170, as a material used in brewing, and Webster twice mentions arras-powder as having been sprinkled on the hair. See Webster's Works, i. 133; Markham's Engl. Housewife, 1649, p. 150.

ARRAUGHT. Reached; seized by violence. We have already had araught and ariche, but this form is quoted as used by Spenser, and admitted by Nares, who was not aware of any example of the verb in the present tense.

ARRAWIGGLE. An earwig. Suffolk. "Arwygyll worms" occurs in the Prompt. Parv. translated by aurialia.

ARRAYERS. Those officers that had the care of the soldiers' armour. Rider.

this may be connected arris, "the line of concourse, edge, or meeting of two surfaces." See Britton's Arch. Dict. in v.

ARRIERE. The hinder part. (Fr.) This foreign word was formerly in use as a military term, instead of rear. See Johnson in v.

ARRISHES. According to Marshall's Rural Economy, l. 171, this is the Devonshire term for stubbles or eddish; arrish mows, which he mentions as little stacks set up in a field, seem to be so called merely from their being in the arrish, or stubble-field.

ARRIVALL. A rival?

On a day he saw a goodly young elephant in copu-lation with another, and instantly a third aproched with a dreffull braying, as if he would have eaten up al the company, and, as it afterward appeared, he was an arrivall to the female which we saw in copu-lation with the other male.

And in hys thought a slepe hym toke.

MS. Cantab. Ff. ii. 38, f. 240.

ARROWY. Abounding in arrows. Milton, Paradise Regained, b. iii. has "sharp sleet of arrowy shower," which is apparently plagiarised by Gray in the following passage.

Now the storm begins to lower,
Haste, the loom of hell prepare!
Iron sleet of arrowy shower
Hurries in the darken'd air.

Gray's Fatal Sisters.

ARRWUS. Arrows. This form of the word occurs in a strange burlesque printed in Reliq. Antiq. i. 82.

ARSEDINE. A kind of ornamental tinsel sometimes called arsady, or orsady, which last is probably the correct word. Ben Jonson mentions it in his Bartholomew Fair, li. 1. See also Sharp's Diss. on Cov. Myst. p. 29; Cunningham's Revels' Accounts, pp. 33, 57. See Arxidue. Gifford considers it to be a vulgar corruption of arsenic, iv. 405.

ARSESMART. The periscaria. It is called the water-pepper by Kersey, and is the translation of curage in Hollyband's Dictionary, 1593. Coles, in his Art of Simplifying, says, "It is said that if a handfull of arsmart be put under the saddle upon a tired horse's back, it will make him travaille fresh and lustily." See Brand's Pop. Antiq. iii. 165; Aubrey's Nat. Hist. Wilts. MS. Soc. Reg. p. 139.

ARSEVERSE. According to Blount's Glossographia, ed. 1681, p. 51, this word is "a pretended spell, written upon the door of an house to keep it from burning."

ARSEWISPE. Rider gives this word, which scarcely requires explanation, as the translation of the Latin anitergium.

ARSLE. To move backwards; to fidget. East. Cotton, in his Virgil Travestie, ed. 1734, p. 5, has arsing about, turning round.

ARSOUN. The bow of a saddle. (A.-N.) It is sometimes used for the saddle itself. Each saddle had two arsouns, one in front, the other behind; the former called the fore-arsoun, as in Richard Coeur de Lion, 5053. In the same romance, 5539, speaking of King Richard, we are told that "both hys arsouns weren off yren." In Kyng Allisaunder, 4251, it apparently means the saddle.

And the arsoun behynde, as y yow say,

Syr Befyse smote cleane away.

ARTICLE. Comprehension. Shakespeare mentions "a soul of great article" in Hamlet, v. 2. The vulgar sense is applied to a poor creature, or a wretched animal. This latter appears rather slang than provincial, yet it is admitted into the East Anglian Vocabulary.

ARTICULATE. To exhibit in articles. See this use of the word in Coriolanus, i. 9, where it means to enter into articles of agreement.

To end those things articulated here

Nichol's Royal Wills, p. 288.

ARTYLLLED. Declared; set out in articles. See Hartshorne's Met. Tales, p. 250, where it may perhaps be an error for artykkilled.

ARVAL. A funeral. North. Arcal-supper is a funeral feast given to the friends of the deceased, at which a particular kind of loaf, called arval-bread, is sometimes distributed among the poor. Arcal-bread is a coarse cake, composed of flour, water, yeast, currants, and some kind of spice; in form round, about eight inches in diameter, and the upper surface always scored, perhaps exhibiting originally the sign of the cross. Not many years since one of these arvals was celebrated in a village in Yorkshire at a public-house, the sign of which was the family arms of a nobleman whose motto is, Virtus post funera civit. The undertaker, who, though a clerk, was no scholar, requested a gentleman present to explain to him the meaning of these Latin words, which he readily and facetiously did in the following manner: l'irtus, a parish clerk, virit, lives well, post funera, at an areal! See Douce's Illustrations, ii. 203.

MS. Harl. 1701, f. 10.

(2) Timid; fearful. See Rob. Glouc. p. 457, "his hert arwe as an hare," erroneously explained swift. Mr. Way refers to an instance in Richard Coer de Lion, 3821, but Weber has arranged the line differently in his glossary.

Thou saist soth, hardy and hard,

And thou art as arwe coward!

He is the furste in eche bataille;

Thou art byhynde ay at the taile.

Kyng Alisunder, 3340.

ASCAT. Broken like an egg. Somerset.

ASCAUNCE. This is interpreted aslant, side-ways, in the glossaries, but Tyrwhitt justly doubts its application in all the following passages. Ascaunt, however, occurs in the early quarto editions of Hamlet, iv. 7, where the folio of 1623, reads aslant. See also Troilus and Creside, i. 292. It apparently means scarcely, as if to say, as if; and is perhaps sometimes an expletive. It seems, however, to mean aslant in Troilus and Creside, i. 205; La Belle Dame sans Mercy, 604.

And wrote alway the names, as he stood,
Of alle folk that yave hem any good,
Ascaunce that he wolde for hem prey.

Chaucer, Cant. T. 7327.

Let him aspre, and wex a philosophe,

plains it "to cry to," an interpretation adopted in the Towneley Mysteries, p. 193. It means there to assail with a shout, as Mr. Dyce observes, notes to Skelton, p. 152. Palgrave has it in the sense to decry, to discover.

word as peculiar to Cumberland, and signifying
"a large free stone," and according to some, it is or was common among builders to denote free-stones as they come from the quarry. The term is still in common use. In the inden-

ASSART. According to Cowell, assart lands are parts of forests cleared of wood, and put into a state of cultivation, for which rents were paid under the name of assart rents. It is also a verb. "Assart," says Blount, "is taken for an offence committed in the forest by plucking up those woods by the roots that are thickets or coverts of the forest, and by making them plain as arable land." See also Scatcherd's History of Morley, p. 166.

(3) A tasting of dishes at the tables of high personages previously to the repast. See Assayer, and Florio, in v. Credenza.

Hall, Henry IV. f. 14.

(4) In hunting, to take the assay, is to draw the knife along the belly of the deer, beginning at the brisket, to discover how fat he is. According to Gifford, this was a mere ceremony: the knife was put into the hands of the "best person" in the field, and drawn lightly down the belly, that the chief huntsman might be entitled to his fee. See Ben Jonson's Works, vi. 270.

is in common use in Yorkshire to describe a species of yellow tinsel much used by the ASSINEGO. A Portuguese word, meaning a young ass. Hence applied to a silly fellow, a fool. Shakespeare has the word in Troilus and Cressida, ii. 1, and it is not unfrequently found in the Elizabethan writers as a term of reproach. Ben Jonson, in his Expostulation with Inigo Jones, makes a severe pun on his name, telling him he was an as-inigo to judge by his ears.

For it is geinli greithed in a god arise.

Wyll. and the Wrenwolf, p. 100.

(2) The "long assise" in the first of the following passages is conjectured by Sir W. Scott, to be a term of chess now disused. Tristrem is playing at chess, and he played so long a time "the long assise," that he won six hawks, and 100*l*. This, I apprehend, is the correct meaning. In the second instance the same phrase is applied to a measure of length, instead of a measure of time. See also Rom. of the Rose, 1392. Skinner makes it synonymous with size.

Now bothe her wedde lye,

And play thal bi-ginne;

Y-sett he bath the long assise,

And endred beth ther lunc. Sir Tristrem, p. 122.

He felle depe or he myght ryse,
Threty fote of longe assyes.

MS. Cantab. Ff. li. 38, f. 221.

We have another instance of the word in the same sense in the romance of Sir Tryamour in the MS. in the Cambridge Public Library. After this hero has cut off the legs of the giant Burlond, he tells him that they are both "at oon assyse," i. e. of the same length.

A lytulle lower, syr, seyde hee,
And let us smalle go wyth thee;
Now are we bothe at oon assyse!

MS. Cantab. Ff. li. 38, f. 61.

Seyn Sagis, 2490.

It is used somewhat differently in Kyng Alisaunder, 2025, and the Sevyng Sages, 956, explained by Weber, "together, in a heap, numerous, plentiful;" but I am informed by Dr. Merriman that he has heard it used in Wiltshire as a kind of expletive, thus, "She's gone into the street astore." This of course differs from the Irish word.

ASTROUT. This word is still used in Somersetshire, explained by Mr. Norris, MS. Glossary, "in a stiff, projecting posture, as when the fingers are kept out stiff." Sir Thomas More, Workes, p. 98, applies it to a stomach swelled by gluttony, "What good can the great gloton do with his bely standing astrole like a taber." In Prompt. Parv. p. 16, "a-strut" is translated by turgide; and Palmer says it is used in the north-east of Devon in the sense of astride. The word occurs in the first sense in a curious poem in the Auchinleck MS. printed in Wright's Political Songs, p. 336; and the following example is taken from another copy in the Bodleian Library, unknown to Mr. Wright, which is valuable as completing his imperfect one. Cowper has astrut, as quoted by Richardson.

To prayers then to merriment.

Herrick's Works, i. 140.

ATTER. (1) Poison. (A.-S.) Hence, corrupt matter issuing from an ulcer, as in Prompt. Parv. p. 16, where it is translated by sanies. This latter is also the provincial use of the word; Forby has it, and Skinner gives it as a Lincolnshire word, in which county it now seems to be obsolete. Kennett, MS. Lansd. 1033, says it was used in Sussex in the same sense. See Piers Ploughman, p. 243.

Of vych a worm that atter bereth,
Other it stingeth, other it tereth.

Append. to W. Mapes, p. 27b.

ATTERCOP. A spider. (A.-S.) It is translated by aranea in the Prompt. Parv. p. 16, and the provincial glossaries give it also the sense of a spider's web, as Ray, Kennett, and others. See Prompt. Parv. p. 140, and the list of old words prefixed to Batman upon Bartholome, 1582, where it occurs in the first sense. Staniburst, in his Description of Ireland, p. 11, says a spider was called an attercop in some parts of that country, and even in Fingal. Pegge explains it, "the venomous spider," which agrees with the etymology from atter, poison; though cobweb, which was anciently spelt copweb, may have been derived from the latter part of the word; Dut. Kop, a spider; Welsh, Cop or Coppin. In the North of England, the term is applied to a peevish, ill-natured person, not exclusively to the female sex, as Mr. Brockett seems to say.

ATTERLOTHE. Nightshade. It is the translation of morella in an early list of plants in MS. Harl. 978, f. 25.

AUD-FARAND. A term applied to children who have copied the manners of elderly people. Kennett, MS. Lansd. 1033, says, "a forward or old-growing child, as children are said to be aud-farand when they are witty or wise beyond their years, apud Boreales." Kennett derives it from A.-S. Faran. AUFYN. The bishop at chess was formerly so called, and is conjectured to be derived from the Arabic al-fil, an elephant, that being the piece which took the place of the bishop in the East. In the tract De Vetula, falsely ascribed to Ovid, the following pieces are mentioned as used in chess,—Miles et Alpinus, Roccus, Rex, Virgo, Pedesque. See Ducange, in v. Alpinus; and Alfyn.

So yn a day, as he pleide at the chesse, and byhelde the kyng sette yn the pley, somtyme hy and somtyme lowe, among aufyns and pownys, he thought therwith that hit wolde be so with him, for he shulde dey, and be hid undir erthe.

AUK. Inverted; confused. In the East of England, bells are "rung auk," to give alarm of fire; and Palsgrave has, "I ryngge aukewarde, je sonne abrausle." It was formerly the general custom to ring bells backward in cases of fire. See Gifford's Massinger, i. 236. The older meaning is angry, ill-natured, as in the Prompt. Parv. p. 18; where we also have, "auke, or wronge, inister." This last sense is still in use in the North of England, and Tusser tells us that bad husbandry droops "at fortune so auke." See the Five Hundred Points, 1573, f. 58. An auk stroke is a backward stroke, as in Palsgrave, f. 18; Morte d'Arthur, i. 148, 284. Brockett says that the word is applied to a stupid or clumsy person in the North of England.

Je that liste has to lyth, or luffes for to here
Off elders of alde tyme, and of theire auke dedys.

Morte Arthure, MS. Lincoln, f. 53.

Yorkshire Dialogue, p. 44.

AUMS-ASE. Literally, two aces, the lowest throw in the dice. It seems, however, from a curious extract in Collier's Hist. Dram. Poet. ii. 314, an old game at dice was so called.

AUMUS. Alms. North. Thoresby, in his Letter to Ray, 1703, spells it awmoss.

AUNCCEL. A kind of land-sale weight, prohibited by statute on account of its great uncertainty. See Brit. Bibl. ii. 512. In the following passage from Piers Ploughman, Mr. Wright's manuscript reads auncer, which can hardly be correct. "Auncell weight, as I have been informed," says Cowell, Interpreter, 1658, "is a kind of weight with scales hanging, or hooks fastened at each end of a staff, which a man listeth up upon his forefinger or hand, and so discerneth the equality or difference between the weight and the thing weighed;" and he afterwards adds, "a man of good credit once certified mee that it is still used in Leaden-all at London among butchers."

Peised a quattron moore
Than myn owne auncer,
Whoso weyed truth. Piers Ploughman, p. 90.

AUNDEIRYS. Andirons. In the inventory of effects belonging to Sir John Fastolfe, "ij. standyng aundeirys" are mentioned. See Archæologia, xxi. 269.

AUNDER. Afternoon; evening. According to Carr, this word is nearly extinct in Craven; Grose says it is used in Cheshire; and Hartshorne gives it as a Shropshire word. It seems derived from undern, q. v. Jamieson says that orntren in Scotland is "the repast taken between dinner and supper." Cotgrave several times mentions aunders-meal as an afternoon's refreshment. See his Dictionary, in v. Gouber, Gouster, Reciné, Reanie.

AUNDIREN. An andiron, q. v. Palsgrave, f. 18, translates "aundyren" by chenet.

Eche day therwith je zal be content:

Aunge alle howrys zal to you apere. Cor. Myst. p. 68.

AUNT. A woman of bad character; a procuress or a bawd. This sense is common in early plays, although aunt and uncle were the usual appellations given by a jester or fool to all elderly persons, without implying any improper meaning, a custom, according to Pegge, generally pursued in Cornwall. In a Midsummer Night's Dream, ii. 1, the term aunt seems to be applied to an old woman, or gossip, not necessarily in the bad sense, as the commentators tell us.

AUNTE. Instead of "up here aunte," the Heralds' College MS. reads, "to-gedere."

Heo gederede up here aunte here out aboute wyde,
And destruyde hire londes eyther in his syde.

Rob. Glouc. p. 37.

AUNTELERE. A stag's antler. See Twety's treatise on hunting in Reliq. Antiq. i. 151.

Chaucer, Cant. T. 4907.

(3) An altar.

Songs and Carols, st. xl.

AUNTEROUS. Adventurous; bold; daring. "A castell aunterous," in Lybeaus Disconus, 279, glossed formidable. The Prompt. Parv. p. 19, makes it synonymous with doubtful, but the other meaning is found at p. 279.

In a cuntre fulle wyde,

Thay come thedr that tyde.

Sir Degrevant, Lincoln MS.

With one auspicious, and one dropping eye.

AUST. To attempt. Warw. It is also used as a substantive.

AUSTERNE. Stern; severe. In the Testament of Cresseide, 154, we have the form austrine in the same sense.

AUTERS. Explained, "strange work, or strange things," in the Clavis at the end of the Yorkshire Dialogue, p. 89. It is probably an error for anters, the genuine early form of the word.

AUTHENTIC. Regularly bred; fashionable. Nares says it "seems to have been the proper epithet for a physician regularly bred or licensed." See All's Well that Ends Well, ii. 3.

Then the seneschall smot his hors with his spurris, and come to theym, for the see was availed and withdrawn. MS. Digby, 105.

(2) To lower; to let down. (A.-N.) This term is often applied to the letting down the front of the helmet, or the visor only without the ventails, as in Robson's Met. Rom. p. 15; Morte d'Arthur, l. 152. Hence the phrase "to vale the bonnet," to lower the bonnet, or take off the hat; and, figuratively, to acknowledge inferiority. See Peter Langtoft, p. 97.

And myty tyrauntes, from here ryalle see
He hath availed and y-put adoun.

(3) The herb harefoot. It was used in cookery, as in a recipe in the Forme of Cury, p. 13, which the original, MS. Addit. 5016, seems to read avante. See Reliq. Antiq. i. 55; Prompt. Parv. pp. 17, 266; Tusser, p. 118; Warner's Antiq. Culin. p. 5. Markham, in his Countre Farme, ed. 1616, p. 182, says "costmarie and avens are verie pleasant hearbes to give a savour like spice in pottage and salads." See also Topsell on Serpents, p. 62; Cooper, in v. Cariophyllata; MS. Sloane 5, f. 11.

AVAST. A sea term, meaning stop, hold, enough. It always precedes some orders or conversation. See Tooke's Diversions of Pur- ley, p. 573; Skinner, in v. Tooke says that Dr. Johnson's interpretations, which I have here adopted, are erroneous, but such are its ordinary uses by sailors. Johnson's etymology from Ital. and Span. Basta is sufficiently plausible.

AVAUNCY. To advance; to raise.

For I thanke to avauncy myne,
And wel the more schal be here pyne.

MS. Addit. 10036, f. 49.

AVAUNT. (1) Before.

The vice clepid avataunce,

Thorow pride of his avauntarie,
He turneth into vilenye.

Gower, MS. Soc. Antiq. 134, f. 24.

Rebuke him for that ilk of that avauntree.

Peter Langtoft, p. 194.

AVAUNTLAY. Under the old system of hunting it was customary to send one or two couples of hounds, with a man, to several points where it was expected the game would pass.
When the deer or other animal came up these hounds were uncoupled. See Sir H. Dryden's notes to Twici, p. 44. Relay properly means any of these sets of hounds; but avauntrelay, or, more commonly, avauntlay, those which, when a hart was unharboured, were a-head of him. See further observations on this subject in a curious work, entitled the Books of Hunting, 4to. Lond. 1586.

Maunderlie's Travels, p. 292.

AVEL. (1) The awn or beard of barley. East.

(2) To tear away. Browne.

AVELACE. Explained by Skinner, "the rings or gymbes of a bag;" but conjectured by him to be a mistake for anelace, q. v.

AVELONG. Elliptical; oval. It is translated by oblongus, in the Prompt. Parv. p. 17. Carr, in his Craven Glossary, conjectures it to be a corruption of oblong, and a correspondent suggests to me half-long; but the form avelonge, in the Middlehill MS. of the Promptorium, seems to warrant Mr. Way's derivation from A.-S. Avelok. Major Moor says, "Workmen —reapers or mowers—approaching the side of a field not perpendicular or parallel to their line of work, will have an unequal portion to do—the excess or deficiency is called avellong work."

AVELY. In the Eastern counties corn is said to be avely, if, when dressed for market, a portion of the awns adhere to the grains.

AVEN. Promise; appearance. Salop. Perhaps connected with the old word avenant, q. v.

AVENANT. (1) Agreement; condition. (A.-N.)

 And sho sal be to the tenant.*

Ywaine and Gawin, 3763.

Will. and the Werewolf, p. 136.

AVENAUNTliche. Beautifully.

To seche thoru that clêr the nas non sich,
 Of erbes, and of erberi, so avenauntliche i-dihit.

Platill of Susan, st. 1.

AVENCE. The feast of Advent. (A.-N.) See MS. Lincoln A. i. 17, f. 215, where a wrong reading has apparently crept into the text, and I am not sure whether it should not be avence in the same sense as avent, q. v.

AVENE. An ear of corn. This is the form of the word aven in the Prompt. Parv. p. 18. "Avenes eyles" is translated by the French arestes, in Walter de Bibblesworth, Reliq. Antiq. ii. 80. Biles we have already had an example of in v. Ails, and it is translated by arista in MS. Lansd. 560, f. 45.

Rob. Glouc. p. 223.

A-VENIMED. Envenomed.

His armes alle a-venimed beth;
 That venim is strong so the deth.

Oy of Warricke, p. 98.

AVENOR. The person who formerly, in the household establishment of the king, and in that also of great barons, had the care of the provender for the horses. The following account of his duties is given in the Book of Curtasye, p. 25, and it has been also quoted from the original manuscript by Mr. Stevenson.

The aveynor schalle ordeyn provande good won,
 For tho lordys horsis everychon;
 Thay schyn have two cast of hay,
 A pek of provande on a day;

He sent abowte every ay-where,

Ashmole spells the word azof, in his Theat. Chem. Brit. pp. 77, 89, 375.

AZOR. An alchemical preparation, a recipe for which occurs in MS. Sloane 1698, f. 7. In the same manuscript is given a curious list of similar terms, but most of them are too technical to require a place in this work. Thus we have azogribali for vitriol, azimac for ink, &c.

AZURE-BYSE. Among some curious receipts in MS. Sloane 2584, p. 3, we are told that "Jif thou wilt prove asure-byse, whether it be good or bade, take a pensel or a penne, and drawe smalle rewles upon blewet lettres with that ceruse, and jif thi ceruse be nost clere white bote dede fade, then is the blewet nost fyne."

B. "To know a B from a battledoor," an old phrase, generally implying, according to Nares, a very slight degree of learning, or the being hardly able to distinguish one thing from another. It is sometimes found in early printed works, as if it should be thus written, "to know A. B. from a battledoor," an instance of which occurs in Taylor's Workes, 1630, ii. 59.

You shall not neede to buy bookes: no, scarce to distinguish a B. from a battledore; onely looke that your eares be long enough to reach our rudiments, and you are made for ever. Gale's Horne-booke, 1609, p. 3. For in this age of critticles are such store, That of a B. will make a battledore.

See the Book of Rates, 1675, p. 24.

BABIES-IN-THE-EYES. The miniature reflection of himself which a person sees in the pupil of another's eye on looking closely into it, was sportively called a little baby, and our old poets make it an employment of lovers to look for them in each others eyes. See Rich's Honestie of this Age, p. 49; Brand's Pop Antiq., iii. 25; Nares, in v.

When I look babies in thine eyes,

Here Venus, there Adonis lies.

BABLACK. A name given to two free-schools at Coventry and Warwick. See Cooke's Guide to Warwick Castle, 1841, p. 93. The term is derived from a piece of land at Coventry formerly so called, and on which the bablack school there is now situated. The boys are clothed in yellow and blue, and perhaps the bablack school at Warwick is so called because a similar uniform has been adopted. It also appears from Sharp's Cov. Myst., pp. 146, 179, 187, that there was formerly a monastic institution at Coventry of the same name, and most likely on the same spot.

BABLATIVE. Talkative.

BABULLE. A bauble. An old proverb in MS. Douce 52, says, "A fole scholde never have a babulle in hande."

Thy babulle schalle be thy dygnyté.

MS. Cantab. Ff. ii. 38, f. 241.

BABY. According to Minsheu, a "puppet for children." The word constantly occurs as a child's plaything, a toy, and is still in use in the North for a picture, especially such as would amuse children. So in the French Schoole-Maister, 1631, f. 98, "Shall we buy a babie or two for our children for pastime?" See also the Book of Rates, p. 24; Malone's Shakespeare, xiii. 108; Cleveland's Poems, p. 64; Brit. Bibl., ii. 399; Du Bartas, p. 3; Florio, in v. Bambola, Bamba, Cucca, Dondola, Pipala; Cotgrave, in v. Poupette; Baret's Alvearie, B. 7, 8. A Bartlemy Fair doll is often mentioned as a Bartholomew baby. Compare the Captain, i. 3,— — "and now you cry for't,

As children do for babies, back again."

Bonmont and Fletcher, ed. Dyce, iii. 235.

Where the editor asks whether the author did not write babies, another word altogether,—

From a passage in the Golden Aphroditis, 1577, "both trumpe and drumme sounded nothing for their larum but Baccare, Baccare," it would seem to have been taken from some old tune.

BACHELOR'S-BUTTONS. The campion flower. According to Grey, Notes on Shakespeare, i. 107, there was an ancient custom amongst country fellows of carrying the flowers of this plant in their pockets, to know whether they should succeed with their sweethearts, and they judged of their good or bad success by their growing or not growing there. "To wear bachelor's buttons" seems to have been a phrase for being unmarried. In some parts of the country, the flower-heads of the common burdock, as well as the wild scabious, are also called by this name.

From this last example it appears that the explanation given by Withals is correct, and Baret has, "a balke or banke of earth rayzed or standing up between two furrowes." To draw a balk is to draw a straight furrow across a field.

The sidewalls and gables being erected, a pair of couples or strong supports is placed between each pair of gables, and the balk is the strong beam, running horizontally, that unites these below. This balk is often used in the poorer cottages to hang various articles on, a custom alluded to in Chaucer, Cant. T., 3626; Hawkins' Engl. Dram. i. 171. A similar beam in a stable or outhouse is also called a balk, as in Topsell's Four Footed Beasts, p. 395; Kennett's Glossary, MS. Lansd. 1033; and the term is occasionally applied generally to any beam or rafter. See also Prompt. Parv. pp. 21, 30, 196; Tusser, p. 204; Skelton, l. 114; Book of Rates, 1675, p. 24. of acrostation has been absurdly deduced from the mention of this game in Du Bartas. It is spelt balloo in Ben Jonson, iii. 216. Cf. Randolph's Poems, 1643, p. 105; Cunningham's

As wise as the mayor of Banbury, who would prove that Henry III. was before Henry II. According to Grose, a nonsensical tale is called a "Banbury story of a cock and bull;" so from these evidences it would not appear that the Banburians were remarkable for sagacity. Banbury, at the commencement of the seventeenth century, was celebrated for its number of puritans, and Ben Jonson calls a puritan a Banbury man. It is now principally known for its cakes. Burdolf, in the Merry Wives of Windsor, compares Slender to Banbury cheese, which seems to have been remarkably thin, for the older Tom Heywood observes that he "never saw Banbury cheese thick enough." BARLEY-BREAK. An ancient rural game, thus described by Gifford. It was played by six people, three of each sex, who were coupled by lot. A piece of ground was then chosen, and divided into three compartments, of which the middle one was called hell. It was the object of the couple condemned to this division to catch the others, who advanced from the two extremities; in which case a change of situation took place, and hell was filled by the couple who were excluded by pre-occupation from the other places; in this "catching," however, there was some difficulty, as, by the regulations of the game, the middle couple were not to separate before they had succeeded, while the others might break hands whenever they found themselves hard pressed. When all had been taken in turn, the last couple were said to be in hell, and the game ended. There is a description of the game in a little tract, called "Barley-breake, or a Warning for Wantons," 4to. Lond. 1607. Some extracts from it will be found in the Brit. Bibl. l. 66. BEVER. (1) An intermediate refreshment between breakfast and dinner. The term is now applied to the afternoon snack of harvestmen and other labourers, and perhaps may be explained more correctly as any refreshment taken between the regular meals. See Beaumont and Fletcher, i. 20; Ford, i. 392; Florio, in v. Merenda; Cooper, in v. Antecoonium; Stanhurst's Descr. of Ireland, p. 18; Nomenclator, p. 79; Sir John Oldcastle, p. 42; Howell, sect. 43; Middleton's Works, iv. 427, v. 141. Sometimes refreshments of drink, or drinkings, were called bevers; but potations were not bevers, as Mr. Dyce asserts.

(2) To tremble; to quiver. North. See Brockett and Palmer. Beveren is wrongly explained "sowing" in Syr Gawayne, as will appear from Morte d'Arthur, i. 22. It is possibly from A.-S. bifian.

Glouc.* p. 623, explains beverage, "beveridge, reward, consequence," and he adds that it is "a word now in use for a refreshment between dinner and supper, and we use the word when any one pays for wearing new cloaths." That it is synonymous with bever appears clearly from Holinshed. Descr. Scot. p. 22. As to the other meaning, "beveridge money" is still demanded on the first appearance of a new suit of clothes, and a forfeit is a button cut off from them if the wearer is so injudicious as to refuse. In Devon, a composition of cider, water, and spice, is called beverage.

(2) Kennett, MS. Lansd. 1033, defines brake, "a small plat or parcel of bushes growing by themselves." This seems to be the right meaning in Mids. Night's Dream, iii. 1, although a single bush is also called a brake. In Palmer's Devonshire Glossary, p. 32, "spinetum, dumetum, a bottom overgrown with thick tangled brushwood." A brake is also a little space with rails on each side, which Mr. Hunter thinks is the Shakespearian term, an explanation rather at variance with Quince's "hawthorn brake;" and moreover, the brake mentioned by this commentator from Barnaby Googe would only be found in cultivated land, not in the centre of the "palace wood." When Puck says, "through bog, through bush, through brake, through briar," an expression, the latter part of which is repeated word for word in Drayton's Nymphidia, we clearly see that Kennett's explanation exactly suits the context. So also when Demetrius says, ii. 2, "I'll run from thee, and hide me in the brakes," can these be little enclosed spots in the middle of the wood in which he is followed by Helena? There is a spot near Broadway, co. Worc., filled with hawthorn bushes and short underwood still called the Brakes. See also Florio, in v. Broncedeo, "full of brakes, briars or bushes."

See further particulars in Thoms' Anec. and Trad. p. 95. acersa, vineolus," Huloet, 1552. Forby has cock-furthing in a similar sense, a term of endearment used to a little boy. "To be dandilyd any longer upon his father's knee, or to be any longer taken for his father's cockney, or minyon, or darling," Palsgrave's Aco lastus, 1540. The voracious Tusser says, p. 276, "some cockneys with cocking are made very fools;" and according to Dekker, Knight's Conjuring, p. 29, the term is derived from the cockering or indulgent mother. A cockney was also a person who sold fruit and greens, qui vendit collibia, Prompt. Parv. p. 281. Dicitur etiam collibista qui vendit collibia, Joan. de Janua. The word is also stated to signify a little cook, but I find no certain authority for such an interpretation. It was frequently used as a term of contempt, as in Chaucer, Cant. T. 4206; Hall's Poems, 1646, repr. p. 28; Twelfth Night, iv. 1. Some writers trace the term with much probability to the imaginary land of Cockayne, so curiously described in the well-known poem printed by Hickes. Florio has, "Cocigna, as Cucigna, lubbarland;" and a ballad in the Roxburghe collection is entitled, "An Invitation to Lubberland, the land of Cockaigne." See Catalogue of B. H. Bright's Library, 1845, p. 26. To these the lines quoted by Camden, in which the "King of Cockney" is mentioned, afford a connecting link, and the modern meaning of cockney, one born in Cockaigne, or Lubberland, a burlesque name for London, seems to be clearly deduced. The King of the Cockneys was a character in the Christmas festivities at Lincoln's Inn in 1517, Brand's Pop. Antiq. i. 295; and Fuller tells us that a person who was absolutely ignorant of rural matters was called a cockney, which is most probably the meaning of the term in Lear, ii. 4, and is still retained. What Bow-bells have to do with it is another question. In the London Prodigal, p. 15, a country fellow says to another, "A and well sed cocknell, and boe-bell too." See also Beaumont and Fletcher, iv. 186, "Bow-bell suckers," i. e. sucking children born within the sound of Bow-bell.—But a cocknell is properly a young cock, as appears from Holly band's Dictionary, 1593; which also seems to be the meaning of cockney in Piers Ploughman, p. 134, and, as Mr. Wright remarks, in Heywood's Proverbs, but a lean chicken was so called, as appears from a passage quoted in Malone's Shakespeare, x. 117. Florio mentions cockanegs in v. Coccherelli, and cockney's-eggs may not be therefore so great an absurdity as is commonly supposed. In Devonshire cockernony is the name of a small cock's egg, which if hatched is said to produce a cockatrice or something exceedingly noxious. A cock's egg, according to Forby, is an abortive egg without a yolk. The absurd tale of the cock neighing, related by Minshew and traditionally remembered, may deserve a passing notice.

A young heyre, or cockney, that is his mothers darling. If hee have playde the waste good at the innes of the court, or about London, falls in a quarrelling humor with his fortune, because she made him not king of the Indies.

"A kind of sport or play with an oyster shell or a stone throwne into the water, and making circles yer it sinke, &c. it is called a duche and a drake, and a half-penny cake," Nomenclator, p. 299. It is remarkable that the same words are still in use. If the stone emerges only once, it is a duck, and increasing in the following order:—

Is another notch,

In the two last instances, length is expressly mentioned as a characteristic of the fylyole. In the absence of certain evidence, I should explain it finalis, and the term in the above instance may be applied to small ornaments on the top of the bedposts in the shape of finials or pinnacles. From the contradistinction of the terms, there was probably some slight difference between the fylyole and pinnacle.

It is often used by very early writers in the phrase under gore, i. e. under the clothing. This explains a disputed passage in Sir Thopas. "Goutlich under gore," MS. Digby 86. "Glad under gore," Wright's Lyric Poetry, p. 26. See also Wright's Pol. Linc. f. 283 is a receipt "for blered eghne and gundy;" and gunny eyes are explained sore running eyes in the Yorkshire Dialogue, 1697, p. 100. The gound is well explained by Milles to be oculorum gramia que ab oculis distillat, and if the old text in the passage in Timon of A., i. 1, "Our Poésie is as a Gourne," ed. 1623, p. 80, is in any way correct, we have in this word gound, or gournde, as it is spelt in Pr. Parv. p. 206, the genuine old reading, which Tieck tries to make sense of in a different manner. The distillat of Milles answers to the uses or oozes of Shakespeare.

HANSE. (1) The upper part of a door frame.

"Atlantes, ymages of antique sette over doores in the corners of an haunce," Elyot, 1559. "The haunse, or lintell of a doore," Cotgrave, in v. Claveau; "the haunse of a dore, un deus de porte," Florio, p. 507, apparently makes it synonymous with threshold, and early scientific writers use it occasionally for the spring of an arch.

(2) To enhance, exalt. Chester Plays, l. 168.

HANSEL. A gift, reward, or bribe. See Reynard the Foxe, p. 146; Depos. Ric. II. p. 30; Piers Ploughman, p. 96. It is a new year's gift, an earnest or earnest penny, any gift or purchase at a particular time or season; also, the first use of anything. The first money received in the morning for the sale of goods is the hansel, and it is accounted fortunate to be the purchaser. Hansel-Monday is the first Monday in the year, when it is usual to make presents to children and servants. "To hansel our sharp blades," to use them for the first time, Sir John Oldcastle, p. 29. In Beves of Hamtoun, p. 113, it means the first action. "In the way of good hansell, de bonne erre," Palsgrave. In the Vale of Blackmore, a present to a young woman at her wedding is called a good hansel. The first purchaser in a shop newly opened hansels it, as the first purchaser of the day does a market. "The first briddall banquet after the wedding daye, the good handzell feast," Nomenclator, p. 80; "Gossips feasts, as they tearme them, good hansel feasts," Withals, ed. 1608, p. 291. "Handselled, that hath the handsell or first use of," Cotgrave, in v. Estreincé. "Haffe hansell for the mar," Robin Hood, l. 87. From the following very curious passage, it appears the writer disbelieved the common superstition respecting the good fortune of the hansel, or hancel.

Of hancel y can no skylle also,
Hyt ys nougt to beleve tharto:
Me thuyketh hyt ys fals every deyl,
Y beleve hyt nougt, ne never shal weyl.
For many hayn glad hancel at the mow,

There is a proverb, and a prayer withall,
That we may not to three strange places fall;
From Hull, from Hallifax, from Hell, 'tis thus,
From all these three, Good Lord, deliver us,
This praying proverb's meaning to set downe,
Men doe not wish deliverance from the towne:
The town's nam'd Kingston, Hull's the furious river,
And from Hull's dangers, I say, Lord deliver!
At Hallifax the law so sharpe doth deale,
That whoso more then 13. pence doth steale,
They have a fyn that wondrous quicke and well,
Sends thieves all headlesse unto heav'n or hell.
From Hell each man sayes, Lord, deliver me,
Because from Hell can no Redemption be:
Men may escape from Hull and Hallifax,
But sure in Hell there is a heavier taxe.
Let each one for themselves in this agree,
And pray, From Hell, good Lord, deliver me!

Aske Humors what a feather he doth weare,
It is his humour (by the Lord) he'll sweare;
Or what he doth with such a horse-talle Locke,
Or why upon a whore he spends his stocke,—

He hath a humour doth determine so :

Why in the stop-throte fashion he doth goe,
With scarfe about his necke, hat without band,—
It is his humour. Sweet sir, understand
What cause his purse is so extreame distrest
That oftentimes is scarcely penny-blest ;
Only a humour. If you question why
His tongue is ne'er unfurnish'd with a lye,—

Or why with sergeants he is so oppress,

His humour answers, humour is his reason.
If you perceive his wits in wetting shrunke,
It cometh of a humour to be drunke.
When you behold his looks pale, thin, and poore,

HUNTING. Most of the principal old hunting terms will be found under their proper heads in the alphabetical order, but the following lists are here given for the use of those who are more especially interested in the subject, or who may have occasion to explain any early passages referring to this genuine old English sport. They are in some degree taken from Sir H. Dryden's edition of Twici, 4to. 1844, and most of the terms will also be found in Blome's Gentleman's Recreations. It should be recollected that, in hunting, there is a peculiar phraseology adapted to each separate animal.

Twici applies the word fianta to the ordure of the boar, but the proper term in France is laines, and in England lesnes. HUNTING-THE-WREN. The custom still prevalent in Ireland, the Isle of Man, and some other places, on St. Stephen's Day, of hunting the wren, is one of very considerable antiquity. Its origin is only accounted for by tradition. Aubrey, having mentioned the last battle fought in the North of Ireland between the Protestants and the Papists, says:—"Near the same place a party of the Protestants had been surprised sleeping by the Popish Irish, were it not for several wrens that just awakened them by dancing and pecking on the drums as the enemy were approaching. For this reason the wild Irish mortally hate these birds to this day, calling them the devil's servants, and killing them wherever they can catch them; they teach their children to thrust them full of thorns; you'll see sometimes on holidays a whole parish running like madmen from hedge to hedge a wren-hunting." In the Isle of Man, on St. Stephen's Day, the children of the villagers procure a wren, attach it with a string to a branch of holly, decorate the branch with pieces of riband that they beg from the various houses, and carry it through the village, singing the following ridiculous lines:—

We'll hunt the wren, says Robin to Bobbin;
We'll hunt the wren, says Richard to Robin;
We'll hunt the wren, says Jack o' th' land;
We'll hunt the wren, says every one.

Where shall we find him? says Robin to Bobbin;

How shall we kill him? says Robin to Bobbin;
How shall we kill him? says Richard to Robin;
How shall we kill him? says Jack o' th' land;
How shall we kill him? says every one.

With sticks and stones, says Robin to Bobbin;
With sticks and stones, says Richard to Robin;
With sticks and stones, says Jack o' th' land;
With sticks and stones, says every one.

How shall we get him home? says Robin to Bobbin;
How shall we get him home? says Richard to Robin;
How shall we get him home? says Jack o' th' land;
How shall we get him home? says every one.

We'll borrow a cart, says Robin to Bobbin;
We'll borrow a cart, says Richard to Robin;
We'll borrow a cart, says Jack o' th' land;
We'll borrow a cart, says every one.

How shall we boil him? says Robin to Bobbin;
How shall we boil him? says Richard to Robin;
How shall we boil him? says Jack o' th' land;
How shall we boil him? says every one.

In the brewery pan, says Robin to Bobbin;
In the brewery pan, says Richard to Robin;
In the brewery pan, says Jack o' th' land;
In the brewery pan, says every one.

HUNT'S-UP. A tune played on the horn under the windows of sportsmen very early in the morning, to awaken them. Hence the term was applied to any noise of an awakening or alarming nature. "A hunt is up or musike plaide under ones window in amorning," Florio, p. 304. "Ruseel, a hunts-up, or morning song for a new-married wife the day after the marriage," Cotgrave. "Huntsup, a clamour, a turbulent outcry," Craven Gl. One ballad of the Hunt's-up commences with the following lines:—

The hunt is up, the hunt is up,
And now it is almost day;
And he that's a-bed with another man's wife,
It's time to get him away.

Mr. Black discovered a document in the Rolls-house, from which it appeared that a song of the Hunt's up was known as early as 1536, when information was sent to the council against one John Rogon, who, "with a crowd or a fyddyll," sung a song with some political allusions to that tune. Some of the words are given in the information:

The hunt is up, the hunt is up, &c.

IPOCRAS. (1) Hippocrates.

And ynto prison put he was;

And now begynneth the tale of Ipoctras.

MS. Cantab. Fl. ii. 38, l. 129.

(2) This beverage has been already mentioned, in v. Hippocras, but some further explanation may, perhaps, not be unacceptable. The manner of making it is thus described in a MS. of medical and other receipts—"To make ypoctrasse for lordis with gynger, synamon, and graynes, sugour, and turesoll: and for comyn pepull gynger canell, longe peper, and claryfyed hony. Loke ye have seytre pewter basens to kepe in your pouders and your ypoctrasse to ren yune, and to vj. basens ye muste have vj. renners on a perche, as ye may here see; and loke your pouders and your gynger be redy and well paryd or hit be beton into poudur. Gynger colombyne is the best gynger; mayken and halandyne be not so good nor holsum. Now thou knowist the propertee of ypoctras. Your pouders must be made everyche by themselves, and leid in a bladder in store, hange sure your perche with baggs, and that no bagge twoyche other, but basen twoyche basen. The fyrst bagge of a galon, every on of the other a potell. Fyrst do into a basen a galon or ij. of red wyne; then put in your pouders, and do it into the renners, and so into the seconde bagge. Then take a peece, and assay it; and yef hit be anythyng to stronge of gynger, alay it withe synamon; and yef it be strong of synamon, alay it withe sugour cute. And thus schall ye make perfyte ypoeras. And loke your bagges be of boltell clothe, and the mouthes opyn, and let it ren in v. or vj. bagges on a perche, and under every bagge a clone basen. The draffes of the spies is good for sewies. Put your ypoeras into a stanche wessel, and hynde upon the mouthe a bladder strongly; then serve forth the wafers and ypoeras." This is printed in the Forme of Cury, p. 161, but I have had no opportunity of seeing the original manuscript, and I am afraid it has not been quite correctly copied in some few instances. Another receipt, much more simple and intelligible, is given in Arnold's Chronicle:—"Take a quart of red wyne, an ounce of synamon, and halfe an ounce of gynger; a quarter of an ounce of greynes, and long peper, and halfe a pounce of suger; and brose all this, and than put them in a bage of wullen clothe, made therefore, with the wyne; and lets it hange over a vessel, tyll the wyne be rane thorowe." A third receipt is given by Cogan,—"Take of cinamon two ounces, of ginger half an ounce, of grains a quarter of an ounce: punne them grosse, and put them into a pottle of good claret or white wine, with half a pound of sugar: let all steep together a night at the least, close covered in some bottle of glasse, pewter, or stone; and when you would occupy it, cast a thinne linnen cloath or a piece of a boulder over the mouth of the bottle, and let so much run through as you will drink at that time, keeping the rest close, for so it will keep both the spirit, odor, and virtue of the wine and spices." Ipoeras seems to have been a great favourite with our ancestors, being served up at every entertainment, public or private. It generally made a part of the last course, and was taken immediately after dinner, with wafers or some other light biscuits. According to Pegge, it was in use at St. John's College, Cambridge, as late as the eighteenth century, and brought in at Christmas at the close of dinner.

IVY. Aubrey mentions a curious custom, which I believe is now quite obsolete. "In several parts of Oxfordshire," he says, "particularly at Lanton, it is the custom for the maid-servant to ask the man for ivy to dress the house, and if the man denies or neglects to fetch in ivy, the maid steals away a pair of his breeches, and nails them up to the gate in the yard or highway."

IVY-BUSH. The ivy-bush was formerly hung out at taverns, to signify that good wine was sold there. The following from a rare work by Braithwaite, Law of Drinking, 12mo. Lond. 1617, is sufficiently curious to be given entire:

A president of binding any one apprentice to the known trade of the Ivy-bush, or Red lettuce; taken out of the ancient register-booke of Putna.

Be it knowne unto all men by these presents, that I Ralph Rednose of Running-Spiggot in the countie of Turne-Tap, bowaer, am tide and fast bound unto Francis Fiery-face in all up-carouses, in twenty pots sterling; that is to say, not by the common can or jug now used, but by the ancient full top and good measure, according to the laudable custome of the Red Lettice of Nip-scalpe; to the which said payment well and truly to be made, I bind me, my heires, ale-squires, pot-companions, lick-wimbles, malt-wormes, vine-fretters, and other faithfull drunkards, firmly by these presents: Dated the thirteenth of Seant-sober, and sealed with O I am ricke, and delivered with a bowle and a broome in the presence of the ostler, the tapster, and the chamberlaine.

IVY-GIRL. A writer in the Gentleman's Magazine, quoted by Brand, i. 33, mentions a sort of sport used in Kent during the month of February, where the girls were burning in triumph a figure which they had stolen from the boys, called a holly-boy, whilst the boys were doing the same with another figure called an ivy-girl. All this ceremony was accompanied with loud huzzas, noise, and acclamations. The writer adds, "what it all means

I cannot tell, although I inquired of several of the oldest people in the place, who could only answer that it had always been a sport at this season of the year."

I-WIS. Certainly; truly; undoubtedly; to wit; especially; besides. (A.-S.) After the fifteenth century, this sense of the word seems to have been lost, and it appears to have been regarded as a pronoun and a verb, I knowe.

Berafrynde, I-seid Adam,
I-weye thou art a wytyt man,
Thou shalt wel drynk therefore.

MS. Cantab. Ff. v. 46, f. 48.
